ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Merrill/Wearths/Updike Farmstead, Amwell Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1840-70, with a 1½ story frame rear ell (b), c. 1780-1803, set at right angles forming a T-shaped plan. Section (a) faces W, 3 bays with center entry and 2 interior gable-end chimneys. Section (b) has 2 bays and an interior gable-end chimney at E end, chimney has exposed stone base with traces of beehive oven on exterior (formerly protected by a shed), large cooking fireplace inside.

SIGNIFICANCE: Although the property has lost at least 10 outbuildings and gained a pond over the past four decades, the house is still of interest because of the older rear ell. A deed of 1803 mentions a house on this property. The transition from working farm to rural residence has caused a loss of integrity through the removal of outbuildings and alteration of the house. While not eligible as an individual property, this farmstead could form a component in a rural historic district.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Weart/Voorhees Farmstead, Amwell Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1760-1820, to W with larger 2 story frame section (b), c. 1875, to E. Both sections face S and have stone foundations, asbestos siding, and slate roofs. Section (a) is 4 bays on second story and 3 bays on first, brick chimney in W gable end, 19th century porch extends along the front on the first floor. It is claimed that section (a) was originally a 1 room deep, 1½ story structure which was extended laterally and vertically to its present form (Brecknell 1973). Section (b) is 2 bays with a porch, c. 1860, over the first floor west window (? formerly a door), door in rear has round-arch panes, terra cotta chimney pot on ridge at E end.

SIGNIFICANCE: This complex of farm buildings, parts of which may date to the late 18th century, illustrates the growth and change of a typical Hopewell area farm. The land was part of the Stout tract in the 18th century and was later owned by members of the Weart and Voorhees families. The main barn bears a date of 1810 and the initials of Andrew R. Weart. Extensive alterations to the house and outbuildings have caused a loss of architectural integrity. While not eligible as an individual property, this farmstead could form a component in a rural historic district.

SITE PLAN

DESCRIPTION:

ENVIRONMENTAL

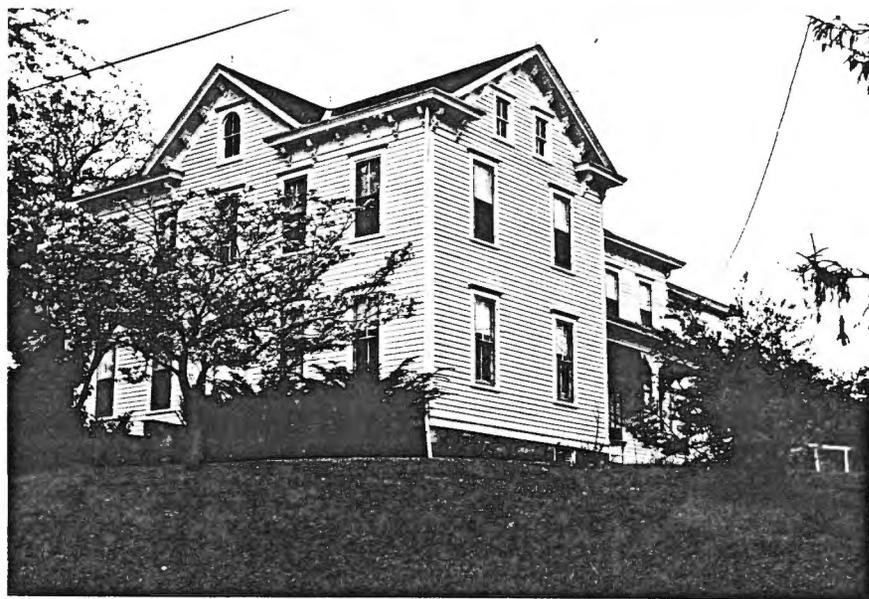

The farmstead nucleus, rectilinear in plan, is located on a S-facing slope at the end of a lane that continues the course of Featherbed Lane to the E of Amwell Road. The farm complex faces S (downhill); pastureland to the S of the lane and the E of the house; woods to the N of the lane and S of the house. The property is not as intensively farmed as in the past.

BUILDINGS

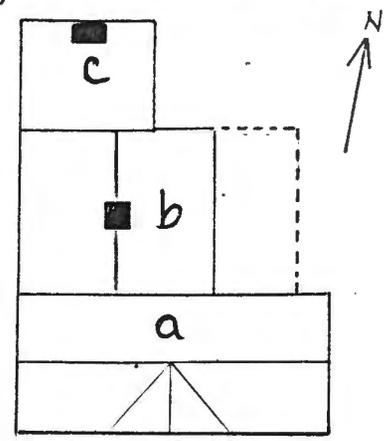

- A. main barn comprised of 2 sections (a) and (b) which together form a large L-plan frame structure with a huge expanse of gabled roof. Section (a) appears to be earlier. Both sections are partly stone: e.g. the E wall of (a) is stone on the first story, as is the W wall of (b). The latter wall has a datestone of 1810 with the initials "W/AR" (Andrew R. Weart). The S end of (a) is open and appears to have never been enclosed. At one time the barn apparently has another addition (no longer standing) which had a cornerstone with the inscription "H V D V 1846/P L V 1846" (probably Henry Van Dike Voorhees and Peter L. Voorhees)
- B. small stone springhouse in front of house and well: also used as a root cellar and smokehouse, c. 1800-75.
- C. frame wagon shed/corn crib: hewn joists, tongue and groove siding, wire nails; signs of maintenance, improvements and alterations, c. 1780-1850
- D&E. frame chicken sheds: 20th century

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Weart/Stout Farmstead, Province Line Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), erected 1888, with a 2 story frame rear ell (b), same age, set at right angles forming L-plan; rear ell has 2 story frame extension to N (c), c. 1890-1920. Section (a) faces S, 5 bays with central cross gable, Colonial Revival doorway (fanlight, radiating muntins and side lights), heavy cornice with sawn brackets, stone foundation. Section (b) has 4 bays with central chimney, porch along E side, cornice as in (a). Section (c) has flat roof, 2 bays, interior chimney at N end.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This property was one of the early Stout family farms, probably dating from at least the mid-18th century. The original house, destroyed by fire in the 1880s, was General Lee's headquarters prior to the Battle of Monmouth in 1778, and was later the home of Randolph Stout, the founder of the Hopewell Museum. This house and parts of some of the outbuildings are shown in an 1875 lithograph. Despite its interesting history and well-preserved later house, this farmstead suffers from a lack of architectural integrity. Not eligible individually but a possible district component.

DESCRIPTION:

ENVIRONMENTAL

This farmstead nucleus is irregular in plan and is located on a S-facing slope on the N side of Amwell Road with the house set close to an oriented towards the road; 10 outbuildings mostly to N and E, all oriented parallel or perpendicular to road. This property is still a working farm and is surrounded by arable fields on all sides; no livestock:

BUILDINGS

- A. ce house (and ? section of earlier house): possibly 18th century, 1 story. N two thirds of this building (a) constructed in stone with large sliding door on E side and small window in N peak, no other openings. S third (b) is frame, 2 bays. Owner claims this structure formed the rear wing of the earlier house (see 1875 view).
- B. single corn crib/wagon house: now garage (a) and double corn crib/wagon house (b) joined by shed roof equipment shed (c). All frame and clapboarded. Both wagon sheds have exposed rafter tails and 20th century hardware. Section (a) has a stone foundation, sliding garage door (later alteration), c. 1825-75 (see 1875 view). Section (b) has stone foundation, vertical board double sliding door, drive-through, c. 1880-1900. Section (c) has open lower story, upper sliding door, c. 1900-50.
- C. frame dairy barn: erected 1933, arched roof, clapboarded, concrete foundation except for stone SW corner with date "JSW 1855" (Wear); silo attached to N, milkhouse to S, lean-to equipment shed to W.
- D. frame stable: 1½ story, gabled, clapboarded, 6/6 window in E peak; 5 9-pane windows and door on S side; concrete foundation; exposed rafters, wire nails, 20th century.
- E. well house: late-19th/20th century
- F. stone ? springhouse: late 19th/20th century
- G. frame ? springhouse: late 19th/20th century
- H., I., J. frame coops: 20th century

Race/Abbott/Swain Farmstead, Featherbed Lane

House: 2 story frame section a), c. 1825-49 with a 2 story frame ell b), c. 1825-1900, set at right angles forming L-plan; two 1 story additions, c. 1900-50 to N and E of (b), giving overall rectangular plan; small 1 story frame addition to W of (a). Section (a) faces S, 3 bays with off-center entry, 2 interior gable end brick chimneys, front porch. aluminum siding, stone foundation. Section (b) has 2 bays.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This much altered and added-to house is reputed to have been a tenant property attached to the Sked Farmstead (1106-2-34) although it was evidently a freeholding of 52 acres in 1875. Deeds show that no house stood on this property before 1822. While a good example of a small 19th century farmhouse on the marginal agricultural land of Sourland Mountain, the property is not historically or architecturally significant.

Section (a) faces SE, 6 bays (two to SW, entry, three to NE), possibly more than one construction phase, 2 interior gable end chimneys, SW chimney is rebuilt but has exposed base, NE chimney obscured by shed addition, wood shingle siding throughout except for clapboard in NE gable peak.

SIGNIFICANCE:

A farm appears to have been centered on this property since at least the late 18th century. The Parke family owned this farm from before 1779 until 1825 when it was acquired by Benjamin Kirkendall. The Sked family occupied this property during the mid and late 19th century. The transition from working farm to rural residence has caused a loss of integrity through the removal of outbuildings and alteration of the house.

Tidd's Schoolhouse, Mountain Church Road

1 story frame school house (a), c. 1860-80, surrounded by additions of late-19th and 20th century date. Additions to SW and NW appear earlier than the rest and may date c. 1890-1930; remainder c. 1930-70. Very little of the schoolhouse remains visible on the exterior--one 6/6 window on NE; one small window in SE gable.

SIGNIFICANCE: This structure, probably erected around 1870 on the site of an earlier log structure built c. 1828, became schoolhouse No. 4 in the Hopewell school system. It is of interest as one of the 19th century schoolhouses on Sourland Mountain and because of its association with Dr. Tidd, a well-known local educator and physician. The school closed in 1913 and has since been a private residence. The original school building is now almost totally obscured by additions and its architectural integrity is impaired. Many finer examples of single room schoolhouses survive in the area (e.g., Marshalls Corner, Woosamonsa, Bedensville).

Hopewell Mountain Christian Church, Mountain Church Road

1 story, 1 room frame structure (a), erected in 1844, with three 20th century frame additions to the rear (b)-(d). Section (a) faces SE, front door with concrete entry pad is centered on SE facade and flanked by two 6/6 windows; sides each have two 6/6 windows; all windows are similar and have shutters; 2 chimneys for wood stoves at midpoint of building on SW and NE sides; bell cupola atop gable at SE end, clapboard siding and stone foundation. Three additions all on concrete block foundations.

SIGNIFICANCE:

The Hopewell Mountain Christian Church was first organized c. 1828. This religious group had no established hierarchy and held strongly to the word of the Bible. It was also known as the Laanite Church after William Lane, leader of another Christian Church in Milford, N.J. During the early years churchgoers met at Tidd's Schoolhouse (then a log structure, the predecessor of the surviving schoolhouse, 1106-3-4)

The present church was built in 1844, was remodeled inside in 1895, and remained in service until 1899. After a brief closure the church reopened in 1902 and has remained intermittently in operation to the present day. The building has been well-maintained and, despite modern additions to the rear and minor interior changes, it still retains a fair measure of architectural integrity. The church is of particular historical interest as an example of mid-19th non-conformism in the isolated rural area of Sourland Mountain.

Section (c) is a greenhouse addition, c. 1960-75; (d) is a 1 story shed addition, c. 1900-50 whose windows match (b) (windows in (b) replaced?); (e) is a 2 frame addition with sheds, c. 1950-75, clapboard siding.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This extensively altered and added-to farmhouse retains very little architectural integrity. It was the focus of a 30 acre farm in 1875 but may date originally to the late 18th century.

Snook/True/Sleuter Farmstead, Hopewell-Wertsville Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1800-50, with a 2 story frame addition (b), c. 1850-1900, attached to NW, and other modern additions. T-shaped plan. Section (a) faces SW, 3 bays, off-center entry, interior gable end chimney at SE end, heavily obscured by both additions. Section (b), double gable, modern windows. Modern additions include 1 story octagonal structure at E and 1 story porch/entry at SE.

SIGNIFICANCE: The house has been heavily altered and no outbuildings survive. The property is not architecturally significant. If the suspected archaeological remains of a pottery are found on this property, these may very well be eligible on historical and archaeological grounds. This would be the only known pottery in Hopewell Township and an important example of the type of redware manufacture carried on on Sourland Mountain. The property may also contain archaeological remains of the former black community of Minnietown.

Thompson/Snook House, Stony Brook Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1850-60, with a 2 story frame section (b), c. 1850-1900, attached to W gable, and a frame addition (c), c. 1940-70, attached to rear. Sections (a) and (b) face S, no chimneys, clapboard siding, verandah/porch across front, c. 1850-1900. Section (a) is 3 bays, off center entry, 2 modern picture windows on second floor, stone foundation. Section (b) is 3 bays, off center entry flanked by asymmetrical windows, 2 windows on second floor, concrete covered foundation.

SIGNIFICANCE: The two earlier sections of this plain house appear to date to the mid-19th century. The building may have been connected with the nearby Runyan/Snook saw mill, possibly providing housing for workers; it could also have performed a commercial function (? a store). As an individual structure it is not architecturally or historically significant; however, if a firm connection can be made with the mill it could conceivably form part of a small historical archaeological district containing the mill site and the neighboring Runyan Farmstead.

Section (a) faces S, 3 bays, center entry flanked by symmetrical windows; interior gable end chimney at E end, dormer at front at E end; W facade has asymmetrically placed windows and small pantry shed addition; new chimney to N and new porches to S, c. 1980; clapboard siding, c. 1950-80; one-room plan, pegged frame with handhewn beams. ? Dutch-framed structure. Section (b) apparently reused old barn timbers.

SIGNIFICANCE: The heavily altered and added-to older section of this house is probably an 18th century Dutch-framed structure (possibly a wing to a larger building to the W, now destroyed, or else a small free-standing one-room cottage). It may have been either a farmhouse or miller's house and is certainly the oldest surviving structure at this intersection. As an individual structure it retains little architectural integrity. However, if it can be firmly linked with the Runyan/Snook saw mill site and perhaps also the Thompson/Snook House, it could form part of a small district of local historical archaeological significance.

Both sections face SE with gable aligned NE/SW; basement under both sections; first floor walls c. 20" thick, stuccoed and painted; second floor clapboard siding. Section (a) is 3 bays; 2 interior gable end chimneys; off center entry. Section (b) is 2 bays; NE gable has door and window on first floor. Stone in SE wall of section (b) has inscription "AROPD 1811 AD REBUILT 1887." 1 story shed addition to NE, ? 20th century.

SIGNIFICANCE: Although this farm is not shown on the 1849 map it apparently dates from at least 1811 and may have originated in the 18th century. The age and sequence of development of the house are difficult to ascertain from an exterior examination only. Because of its apparent age, relatively unaltered architecture, and association with the Golden family, it is possible that this farmstead -- upon closer examination -- may be considered significant and eligible for the National Register.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Titus Farmstead, County Route 518 (Lambertville-Hopewell Road)

House: 2 story stone structure. stuccoed in places, c. 1790-1820; faces S, 6 bays, main entry with porch in second bay from W, 2 interior gable end chimneys (brick upper portions), fenestration and rear facade much altered. full basement; 1 story shed addition to E; interior gutted in 1950.

(Note: a Pennsylvania log house, recorded by HABS, was recently moved to this property).

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead apparently dates from the early federal period. It was perhaps established around the same time of the Georgetown-Franklin Turnpike beside which it is located. Although of considerable interest because it contains one of the few examples in the township of a federal-style stone house and a fine barn, the property does not retain sufficient architectural integrity to warrant National Register listing.

Houghton/Suydam/Birch Farmstead, Hopewell-Wertsville Road

House: 2 story stone and frame section (a), lower stone portion c. 1750-75, upper frame portion c. 1800-50, with 1½ story frame section (b), ? 18th century, attached to NE end, and 1½ story frame section (c), c. 1930-60, set at right angles to (b). Section (a) is 2 bays, original orientation unclear (probably to SE), interior gable end chimney at SW end (brick upper portion), first story mostly obscured by 1 story additions, (? originally kitchen wing). Section (b) is 2 bays, original orientation unknown (exterior reworked) but probably faced SE, interior gable end chimney at SW end, stone foundation.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead probably dates from the mid-18th century and parts of the house may date from this period. The property is important as the home of Colonel Joab Houghton, one of Hunterdon County's more prominent Revolutionary War era figures. The house has been extensively altered and retains little architectural integrity.

Waters Farmstead, Hopewell-Wertsville Road

House: 2 story brick structure, T-shaped plan with short stem/off-center gable at front, c. 1857 but may reuse parts of earlier structure; faces SE, 3 bay central section with 1 bay (each with entry) and entry porch on either side forming double farmhouse; interior gable end chimney at SW end; 6/6 windows with stone sills and lintels; datestone below garret window in NE gable "PW 1857"; stuccoed stone foundation with brick water table on NE and SE; 1 story shed addition to SW, 20th century.

SIGNIFICANCE:

A farmstead is shown in this location on the 1849 map and the house may contain portions of an early 19th century structure. Based on the datestone, however, the main NE/SW section was apparently constructed in 1857 with the central portion perhaps altered c. 1900. This may be the double farmhouse referred to as "Ralston Farms" a key component in the early 20th century Edgerly development (see 1106-6-7). The farm was owned by Edgerly in 1903. The building itself is not individually eligible but if this is Ralston Farms then the property may form part of a district based on Edgerly's Castle.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Edgerly's Castle, North Greenwood Avenue

House: 2 story brick main block (a) with 2 story brick wing (b) to NW, both c. 1895-1903; another 2 story brick wing (c) linked to (b) by 1 story section, ? c. 1895-1903; modern addition (d), c. 1980, attached to SW of (a). Main block (a) faces S, square plan, 3 story round turret at SE corner, 3 story square turrets to SW and NW, pyramidal roof (asphalt shingles), full attic with 3 dormers; double front doors, entry steps and wrap-around porch on S. Section (b) is 4 bays, brownstone quoins, mansard roof. (a) and (b) both have scored concrete foundations and brownstone water table; most windows have segmental brick arches, with brownstone keystones, spring blocks and lintels. Section (c), 2 story, mansard roof.

SIGNIFICANCE: Edgerly's Castle, also known as Edgerly Terrace, was built at the turn of the century by Webster Edgerly, President of the Ralston Health Club, as the centerpiece of an ambitious real estate venture that sought to establish a planned community on the hillside overlooking Hopewell Borough. While the project was never fully realized, a number of other houses were built as well as an elaborate water supply system and numerous outbuildings. Although the mansion has been altered, few other structures survive, and the landscaping is a shadow of its former self, the property still reflects its origins as a large scale, late Victorian development scheme. (See also 1106-6-5 and 1106-6-32(B)).

Phillips Farmstead, Hart Avenue

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1785-1820 with 2 story frame section (b) attached to NE, c. 1850-1900. Both sections face SE, stuccoed ?stone foundation, clapboard siding. Section (a), SE facade, 5 bays, 2 entries off center, 2 interior gable end chimneys; two 1 story frame additions to SW, 20th century.

SIGNIFICANCE:

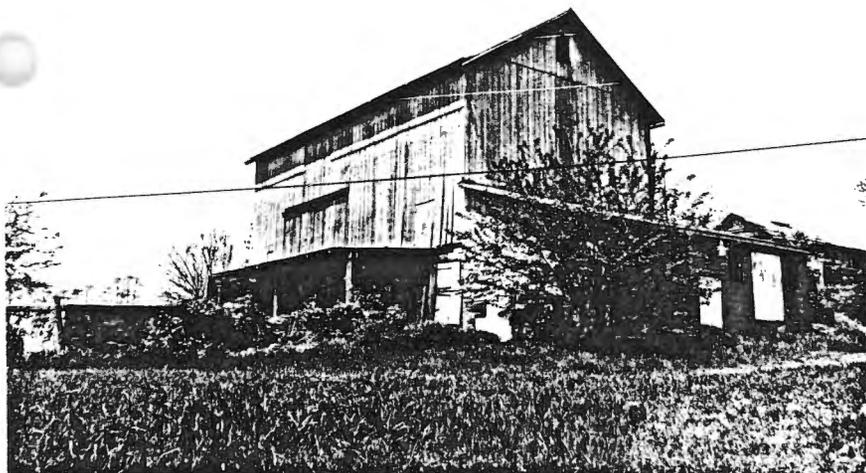

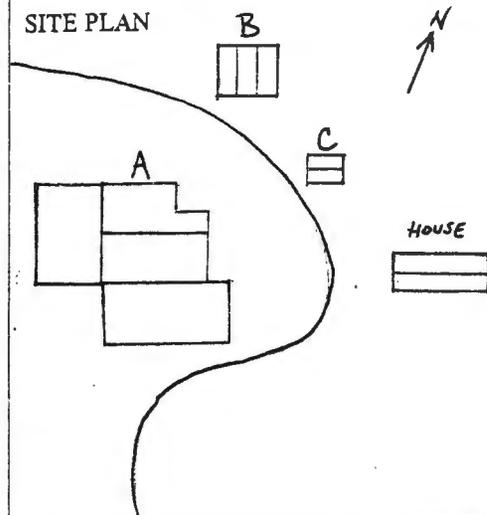

This farmstead appears to have been set off sometime after 1785 and, for most of its history, was in the hands of the Phillips family. The original section of the house is a typical one room deep vernacular structure of the federal period. Owing to the house's later additions, the undistinguished character of the outbuildings, and its altered setting this property is not considered of National Register quality.

House: 2 story brick section, T-shaped plan (a), c. 1860-75, with 2 story brick-faced frame section (b), c. 1860-1925, attached to E side, and 2 story frame section (c), c. 1860-1925, added to S of rear ell of (a). Section (a) faces N, 5 symmetrical bays with center entry in main portion, 2 interior gable end chimneys, wooden lintels and sills, simple box cornice, slate roof, stone foundation with 3 course brick water table, later porch with sawn posts and concrete foundation; rear portion matches front but no water table, center chimney. Section (b) is 2 bays, flat roof. Section (c) is 1 bay and may be part of same building phase as (a). Sections (a) and (c) possible brick-clad frame structures. 1 story frame additions to SE.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead does not appear on historic maps until 1875 when it was a 105-acre property. The farmhouse is deceptive in that it looks at first glance like an early 19th century federal-style structure but it probably dates to the third quarter of the century. The property is not considered architecturally or historically significant enough to merit National Register listing.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Stout/Voorhees Farmstead, Amwell Road

House: 2 story central stone section (a), c. 1766, with flanking 2 story frame sections (b) and (c), 1969, to NW and SE. Section (a) faces NE (originally faced SW), 5 bays, center entry, 2 interior gable end chimneys, datestone (1766) moved from SE gable to SW facade has initials "HS" (Hezekiah Stout), "1761" carved in wood lintel on rear facade. Section (b) has gabled roof; section (c) a gambrel roof. Modern garage attached to N corner of section (b). House was heavily restored in late 1960s by architect Gerald Watland, at which time sections (b) and (c) were added, stucco was removed from section (a), and main entry to (a) was restored. A frame lean-to was removed when section (c) was built.

SIGNIFICANCE: This farmstead seems to have been established in the 1760s by Hezekiah Stout. The complex is of interest for its varied assortment of agricultural buildings and its continuing agricultural activity. The farmhouse has a fairly well-preserved, albeit restored, 18th century core and is unusual for its late 1960s additions which are intended to recall 18th century forms. The property probably does not merit National Register listing as an individual site or group of structures on historic architectural grounds, but could be a key element in a rural district based on this valley and Pheasant Hill.

Merrill/Weart/Sheppard Farmstead, Amwell Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1700-60, with a larger 2 story frame section (b), c. 1700-50, raised c. 1854, attached to the E. Both sections face S, exposed beams in interior first floor (beaded in W section, chamfered in E section), later porch across S side, recent siding. Section (a) has 2 bays, large cooking fireplace (beehive oven removed) and winder staircase at W end, 1 story shed addition to W wraps around to S. Section (b) has 2 bays, 2 rooms deep with large cooking fireplace, corner fireplace, and a winder staircase at W end; stone in large fireplace bears date 1711; entire section remodeled and raised c. 1864.

SIGNIFICANCE:

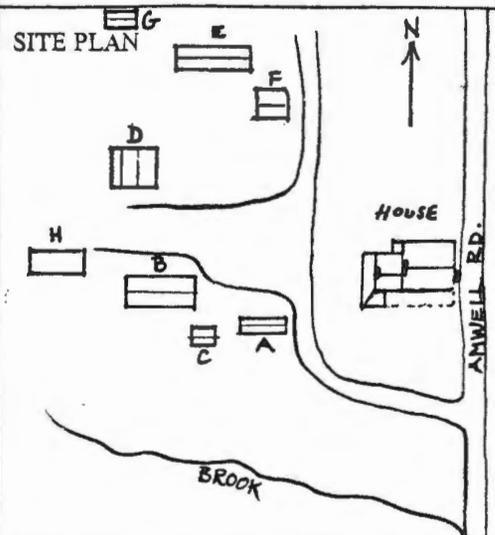

This farmstead was probably established originally by the Stout family in the mid-18th century, passing soon after into Merrill ownership until the mid-19th century. The farmhouse is of considerable interest as it exhibits a complex evolution spanning well over two centuries. The outbuildings date chiefly from the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The property retains fine integrity of setting, still functions as a farm, is individually eligible and would be a key element in a rural district.

Servis Farmstead, Hopewell-Wertsville Road

House: 2 story, Federal-style frame section (a), c. 1830-49, with a 2 story frame section (b), 20th century, ? on site of earlier structure, set at right angles to rear forming T-shaped plan. Section (a) faces W, 5 bays, center entry, 2 interior gable-end chimneys, porch with Doric columns over front door, stuccoed stone foundation. Greenhouse attached to S section (b).

SIGNIFICANCE:

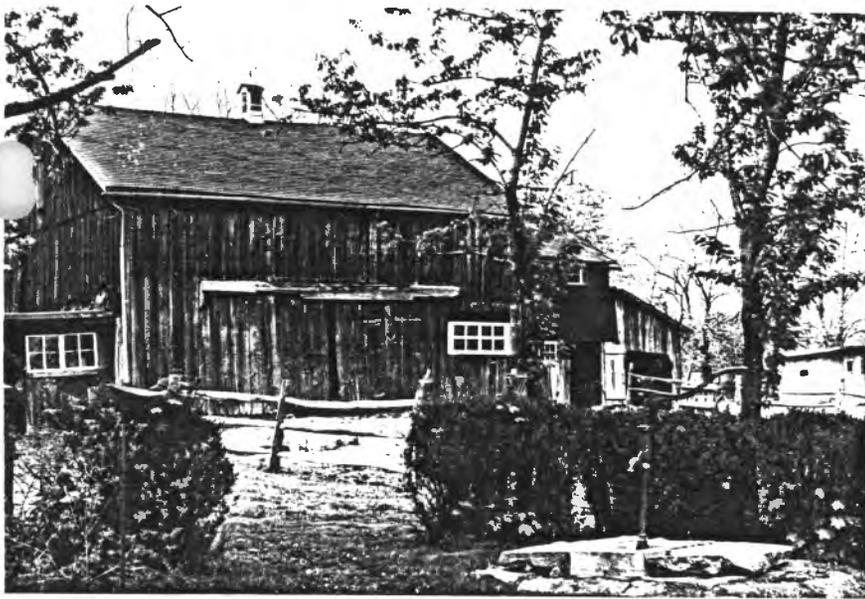

Buildings were apparently in existence on this property as early as 1803 (possibly the Blacksmith shop of Philip Servis). The present structures are all later than this date. This well-maintained property is a good example of a small, early 19th Century Hopewell area farmstead. The architectural integrity of the farmhouse has been affected by modern additions to the rear.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Stout/Bellis/Kise Farmstead, Dunwald Road

House: 1½ story stone section (a), c. 1740-70, with 1½ story stone section (b), c. 1790-1825, attached to W. 1½ story frame section (c), c. 1950-70 to NE of (a). Modern frame garage addition (d) to SW of (b). Section (a) faces S with datestone on exterior "S S A 1756" (? Samuel and Anne Stout), altered facade (picture window and dormer); 1 room deep, bank house with full lived-in basement which contains cooking fireplace at E end, openings on S side and evidence of internal partitions; first floor has large cooking fireplace at W end; exposed, handhewn, front-to-back joists in floor and ? ceiling; windows with segmented arches; second datestone on N side "David Golden May 23 1790 DG" (? relates to construction to adjacent window). Section (b) faces S, main entry at E end, interior gable end chimney at W end with early 19th century fireplace and moldings, slighter framing members, no basement.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead probably originated as one of the Stout family holdings in the mid-18th century. The eastern section of the house, although altered, still retains many mid-18th century features while the early 19th century western section is particularly well-preserved. Probably not eligible as an individual structure but it could form an important component in a rural district.

Enclosed porch to S and 2 story frame addition to rear (E). Main structure may date from c. 1910-40 but could also be a heavily altered, earlier structure.

SIGNIFICANCE:

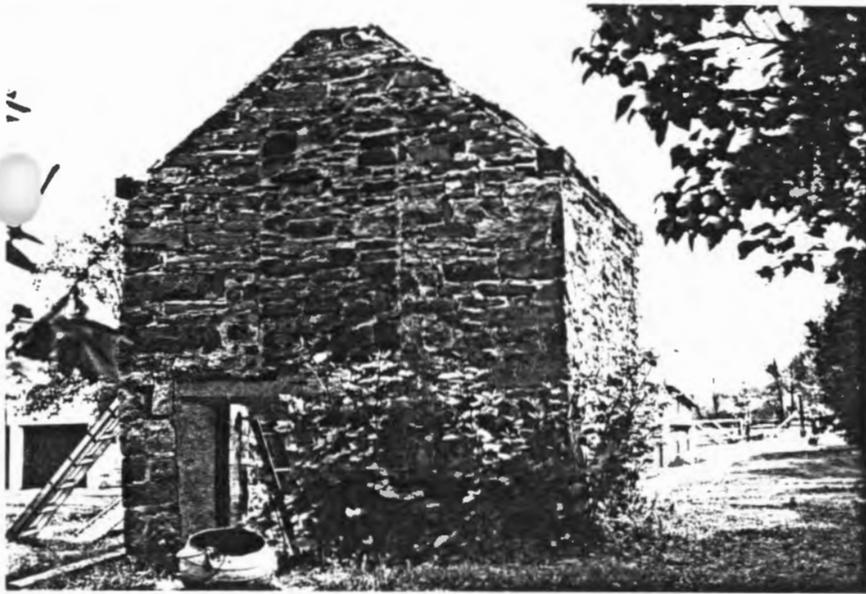

A farmstead was centered on this property from at least the first half of the 19th century. From 1849 through 1875 it was owned by the Vandyke family and comprised a 17 acre holding in the latter year. The only structure of any obvious architectural integrity is the stone smokehouse.

Section (b) faces SE, 3 bays, center entry, 2 rooms deep.

SIGNIFICANCE:

A house was located on this property from at least the first half of the 19th century when it was owned by the Merrill family. This building may have been a secondary structure on the Merrill farm to the NE (1106-8-4). The house has been so altered that it is impossible to assign a precise date to it from an exterior examination only. It retains little historical architectural integrity but is of historical interest in the context of the local Merrill holdings.

Section (b) faces SE, 2 bays, center entry. Section (c) has 2 bay, interior gable end chimney at NW end. Full-width porch along SE side of (a) and (b).

SIGNIFICANCE:

This is a fairly typical mid-19th century Hopewell area roadside farmstead. The farmhouse was built in three stages and, despite its additions and some exterior alterations, still possesses a reasonable degree of integrity, as do the outbuildings. The setting and northward aspect are moderately unaltered. While not eligible as an individual property, this farmstead would be a contributing element in a rural district.

Section (a) faces W, 3 bays in front position, chimney at N end, rear portion has main entry on S side and chimney on N side. Basement under both front and rear of (a). Originally constructed as a typical one room deep frame I-house with rear kitchen ell, main entry on W side of front portion, cooking fire-place in E end of rear portion, outside entry into basement from rear of front portion under present patio (original configuration visible in basement). Section (a) veneered in brick and heavily modified c. 1940 when section (b) added. No basement under (b).

SIGNIFICANCE:

This small late 19th century farmstead probably originated as a tenant property for the main Housel farmstead to the NE (now destroyed, 1106-8-32(B)). The house demonstrates the evolution of the site from a working farm to suburban duplex. The property no longer retains sufficient integrity to warrant inclusion in the National Register.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This house was originally a tenant house attached to the Vanbuskirk farmstead (11068-42(A)) to the W and is still in common ownership. County Route 518 (Hopewell-Rocky Hill Road)

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1735-70, with larger 2 story frame section (b), c. 1750-1790, attached to W end. Section (c), attached to W end of (b) consists of an original 1-room frame wing c. 1800-50, later enlarged to rear and W and ? raised. All 3 sections face S. Section (a) has 4 bays, interior gable end chimney at E end, basement under E half but entire section is one build (framing in attic and basement), clapboard siding, porch across front. Section (b) is 3 bays, originally 2 bays deep with corner fireplaces at W end (now single room with early 19th century rebuilt fireplace), full basement, modillioned cornice, clapboard siding. Section (c) has no basement and defies clean interpretation from exterior examination; now has 4 bays and central interior chimney towards front of house (function of original 1-room wing uncertain -- ? kitchen or smokehouse or slave quarter).

SIGNIFICANCE:

This is probably one of the earlier Stout farms in the Hopewell area and appears to have been in Stout ownership from c. 1738 until at least 1800. The extremely interesting and complex house dates in large part from this period. Although its later alterations have deprived it of much of its historic architectural integrity, this building would form an important component in a rural district based on the Stout family farms in NE Hopewell Township.

DESCRIPTION:

ENVIRONMENTAL

The farmstead nucleus is located at the end of a long lane leading N from County Route 518. It occupies fairly flat terrain and is presently surrounded by fields (soon to be developed). The Reading Railroad line passes NW of the farm and severs it from much of its historically-associated lands. The property no longer functions as a farm.

BUILDINGS

- . large frame barn: 2 sections, main section to E is raised/basement barn, 2 story with stone basement and ramp to first floor on N side, 3 bays, clapboard siding, adapted for dairy use, concrete floor; smaller section to W has stone basement open to S. Both sections have hewn beams, c. 1780-1850.
- B. frame chicken house: 1 story, shed roof, c. 1920-60.
- C. frame garage: 1½ story, plywood siding, sliding doors, c. 1920-60.
- D. frame shed (? smokehouse): clapboard siding, cinder block foundation, c. 1920-60.
- E. frame garage: c. 1920-60.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Stout/Hill Farmstead,
County Route 518 (Hopewell-Rocky Hill Road)

House: 2 story brick section (a), c. 1810-30, with larger 2 story brick section (b), c. 1810-30, attached to SW, and 2 story brick section (c), c. 1830-60, similar size as (a), attached to NE. Modern 1 story, curved bricked addition (d) to SW of (b) and modern 1 story, L-shaped, stuccoed ? brick addition (e) to N of (c). Greenhouse (f) to NE of (e). Section (a) faces SE, 2 bays, no entry on SE side, 2 large round-arched windows, interior gable end chimney at NE end, modern interior chimney at SW end towards front, one room deep, no basement, stuccoed rear. Section (b) faces S, 4 bays, entry with fanlight at NE end, single interior gable end chimney at NE end, paired interior gable end chimneys at SW end, stone foundation, basement, 3 bays at rear. Section (c) faces S, 2 bays, stuccoed NW and NE sides, frame NE gable, bay window at NE end.

SIGNIFICANCE: This farmstead reputedly dates from the first quarter of the 18th century and was the home of Captain David Stout. The original house was apparently located near the present house, the central portions of which were erected c. 1820. The latter structure was extensively altered c. 1960 by Dr. Kenneth Chorley, a leading figure in the Williamsburg restorations. The property retains little architectural integrity and is not individually eligible for the National Register. Its association with the Stout family and its potential for early historic archaeological resources might enable its inclusion as a district component

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Baldwin Farmstead, County Route 518 (Hopewell-Rocky Hill Road)

House: 7 main sections of which only one (a) is old and 6 (b-g) are very recent. Historic core faces S and consists of 2 story frame section (a), c. 1810-40, with smaller 2 story stone section (b), 1984-85, attached to W, and 2 story frame section (d), c. 1970, set at right angles to rear of (a). Section (a) has 4 bays, off-center entry with porch, interior gable end chimney at E end, full basement. Section (b) has 2 bays, no entry. Section (c) has interior gable end chimney at N end. Sections (d)-(g) are 2 story and one story frame additions to N (rear) and W, c. 1984-85.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead was probably established in the early 19th century on what was originally Stout property. Dr. James H. Baldwin, a notable local physician, lived here from the 1830s and either he or John Hageman (from whom he purchased this property) was probably responsible for building the original house. The house has undergone massive additions and alterations in 1984-85, and retains little historic architectural integrity.

Section (c) faces S, 3 bays, modern wood shingle siding.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead is on land originally owned by Jonathan Stout, the pioneer. It remained in Stout ownership into the late 19th century. The house and outbuildings are a good example of how farm structures typically evolved in the 18th and 19th centuries. Individually eligible, this property would also be a key element in a rural district in this area.

SIGNIFICANCE:

The present house apparently occupies the site of an earlier structure and a farmstead was in existence here from at least the first half of the 19th century. The Weart family, major land owners in the NE part of the township, erected the present house, a good example of a Greek Revival-influenced rural farm house, in 1854. SIGNIFICANCE: A farmstead, under Stout ownership, has been centered on this property from at least the first half of the 19th century, and probably earlier. House: 2 story frame structure, c. 1740-1800 (? remodeled c. 1780-1820), faces S, 3 bays with off-center entry between center and E window, 2 interior gable end chimneys and modern exterior chimney at rear, 2 rooms deep, originally had corner fireplaces at E end and large cooking fireplace at W end (foundations visible in basement), clapboard and cedar shingle siding, 1 story shed addition and porch to N and W.

SIGNIFICANCE:

Although the farmhouse, from its exterior appearance, has a 19th century form, certain of its internal features (floor plan, corner fireplaces, large cooking fireplace) indicate that it probably dates from before the Revolution. It is shown on all the 19th century historic maps. Despite the age of the farmhouse and its interesting architectural development, this property is ruinous and probably beyond repair. Because of the poor condition of its various structures, it is not considered eligible for the National Register.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Voorhees/Vandyke Farmstead
County Route 518 (Hopewell-Rocky Hill Road)

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1840-80 reportedly containing earlier 18th century elements, with 2 story frame rear ell (b), c. 1860-80, set at right angles to (a). 1 story additions to rear S of (a) and (b). Section (a) faces N, 5 bays, ? originally had center entry (now a window), one room deep, clapboard siding, broad frieze with evidence of paired brackets, stuccoed foundation, basement, heavily altered but interior apparently includes parts of an older fireplace and earlier structure (? moved on to present site). Section (b) faces E, 2 bays, central interior chimney, flat roof.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead may date back to c. 1725 although there are no clear indications of structural features of that age on the site. The property was originally in Stout family ownership. The present house and barn (converted to house) have both been extensively altered as have two other barns to the SE (now a house and office).

The farmstead is located on a slight rise to the W of a tributary of Bedens Brook. Fields lie to the S; the immediate surroundings are lightly wooded.

BUILDINGS

A. frame barn (house): ? originally a wagon house or small barn, now a 2 story house with 1 story addition, novelty siding, exposed rafter tails, c. 1880-1920.

B. frame garage: 20th century..

(2 additional barns, not surveyed, lying further to the SE, were apparently associated with this farm; one has been converted into a house, the other an office; the former may be a Dutch barn.)

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Vandyke Farmstead, Hopewell-Princeton Road
The house on this property is no longer standing.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This property contains an unusually large number and interesting collection of farm buildings, mostly dating from the turn of the century and probably a result of this farm serving the nearby St. Michael's Orphanage (now destroyed, 1106-4-16(D)). The farmhouse has been destroyed and the barn complex is deteriorated.

Conover Farmstead, Pennington-Rocky Hill Road, Mount Rose

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1860-75, with 2 story frame rear ell (b), same age, set at right angles to N forming T-shaped plan. Section (a) faces S with gable parallel to road, 5 bays, center entry, 3 bay wooden porch with square posts and simple pierced brackets, center cross gable with round arch window in the gable peak, exterior gable end chimney at W end, synthetic clapboard siding, aluminum soffits and corner returns, modern shutters. Section (b) has 1 bay and modern 1 story frame addition to rear. 1 story enclosed porch in NW angle of (a) and (b).

SIGNIFICANCE:

This small farmstead dates from the third quarter of the 19th century when it was occupied by George Conover. Although the building retains its original form and many of its Victorian style features, its exterior has been altered by the application of synthetic siding.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Drake House, Pennington-Rocky Hill Road, Mount Rose

2 story frame structure, c. 1860-75, faces S with gable parallel to road, 5 bays, center entry with recent 2 bay projecting bay window to W, replacement shutters on second floor, asbestos shingle siding, gable roof with minimal eaves, center cross gable with round-headed 9/3 Queen Anne window with a keystone in the surround, interior gable end chimney at E end, recent 2 story frame rear addition.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This house dates from the third quarter of the 19th century when it was occupied by A. Drake. The architectural character of the Victorian style house has been altered by synthetic siding and shutters, a projecting bay window on the front facade, improperly-sized replacement shutters, and an addition to the rear.

Titus Hotel/Updyke House, Pennington-Rocky Hill Road, Mount Rose

2 story frame structure, c. 1825-49, faces S with gable parallel to road, 5 bays, center entry with Greek Revival single paneled front door, windows are 6/9 with paneled shutters on first floor and 6/6 with louvered shutters on second floor, clapboard siding (?), gable roof with asphalt shingles and broad fascia at the eaves, interior gable chimney at E end, formerly had a full width front porch on turned posts, c. 1890-1920 (now removed), full width shed roof rear addition giving overall saltbox appearance.

SIGNIFICANCE:

Probably dating from the second quarter of the 19th century, this structure appears as "L. Titus Hotel" on the 1849 map. In 1885 the house was advertised as having "six rooms, with well water at the door, large and commodious wheelwright and blacksmith shops, barn and other outbuildings, all in good repair." None of the outbuildings survive and the house's exterior was altered between 1978 and 1984. From a cursory exterior examination this property does not appear eligible for the National Register although examination of the interior is advised.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Cook House, Pennington-Rocky Hill Road, Mount Rose

2 story frame structure, c. 1875-1900 (possibly built in more than one phase and incorporating earlier building), faces S with gable end toward street. 3 bays with entrance off-set to W, synthetic clapboard siding, new aluminum shutters, recent 1/1 windows, full width front porch with shed roof and wrought iron supports, interior chimney in center on ridge, exterior chimney and outside stair on E side, 1 story frame section to N links to 1 story frame garage (both c. 1950-75).

Note: The historic map data is confusing; this property is difficult to distinguish from 1106-16-12(B) and 1106-16-22(A) and (B); further research required.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This house may date from the second quarter of the 19th century but was reworked around the turn of this century. The property on which it is located was purchased in 1858 by Josiah Cook, one of the early farmers of Mount Rose. It was closely connected with the neighboring structure to the W (a store) and may have served a commercial function itself. The building's architectural integrity has been diminished by synthetic siding and modern fenestration and shutters.

Vanbuskirk/Schomp Farmstead, Hopewell-Princeton Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1849-60, with smaller 2 story frame section (b), probably same age, attached to W end. Both sections face S, and have clapboard siding and slate roofs. Section (a) has 5 bays, center entry with transom, cross gable, 2 interior gable end chimneys, 4/4 windows, porch across rear, interior includes grained 4-panel doors and 2 marbelized slate fireplaces. Section (b) has 2 bays, 1 room deep, interior gable end chimney and large fireplace at W end, 1 story shed covers N, S and W facades.

SIGNIFICANCE:

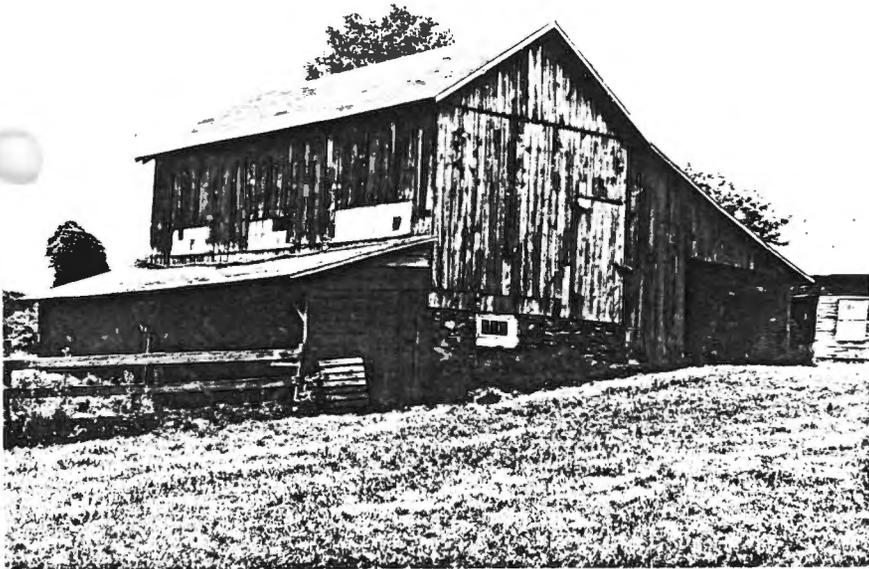

This farmstead apparently dates from the 1850s and may have been established on the site of the flax mill located nearby on Bedens Brook. The farmhouse is typical of the mid-19th century, but its condition at the time of survey was poor and its integrity has suffered as a result of later additions. ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Ketcham/Reed/Moore Farmstead, Crusher Road

House: 2 story frame structure, ? originally c. 1800-50 but may contain multiple building phases, faces S, 6 bays off-center entry in third bay from E, exterior gable end chimney at E end towards rear, ? stone foundation, aluminum siding, 6/6 modern windows, 1 story frame addition to W.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead probably dates from the early 19th century although it is impossible from an exterior examination to assign a firm date to the house. The house has been heavily altered and retains little architectural integrity. The outbuildings are likewise of little architectural importance.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Stout/Terhune Farmstead, Crusher Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49, with 2 story frame rear ell (b), c. 1825-49 or possibly later, set at right angles to (a) forming L-shaped plan. Both sections have clapboard siding, stone foundations. Section (a) faces W, 4 bays, off-center only with 3-light transom in second bay from N, 2 interior gable end chimneys, one room deep. Section (b) has 2 bay modern windows in E end (?replacing chimney), 1 story shed additions to NE, E, and S.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead appears to date from the first half of the 19th century and is one of a series of farms that lined the south slope of the Mount Rose ridge. The house, a fairly typical yet plain structure, is the only surviving historic building on the property.

Drake Farmstead, Pennington - Rocky Hill Road

House: 2 story frame structure, c. 1825-49, with 1 story frame additions, c. 1900-30, attached to each gable end. Main block faces SW, 5 bays, center entry, door with transom and pedimented gable porch (Greek Revival), 6/6 windows, box cornice and simple fascia (later 19th century), 2 interior gable end chimneys, NW chimney on ridge, SE chimney to SW of ridge, clapboard siding, stone foundation. Addition to SE has similar roof treatment as main block, supposedly dates to 1910, includes hewn beams in basement (? re-used).

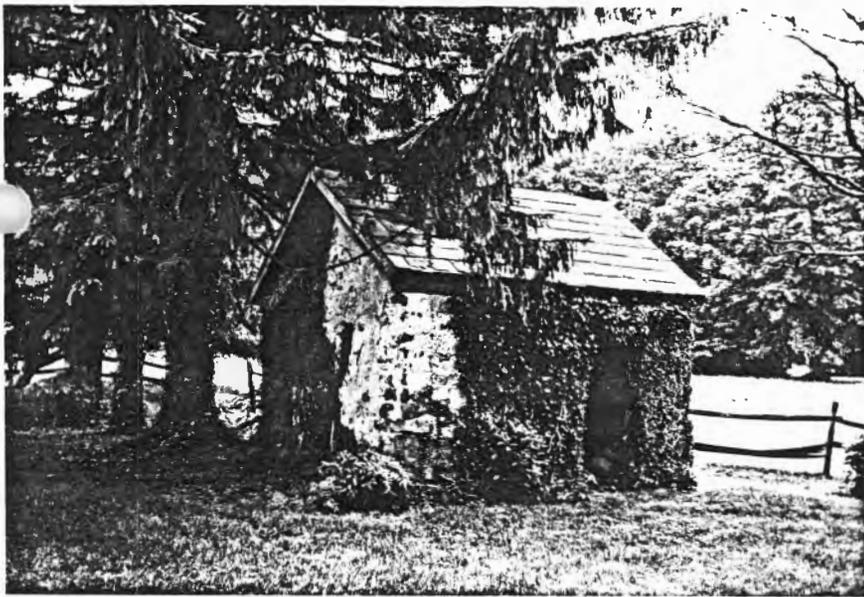

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead, historically associated with the Drake family, dates from the second quarter of the 19th century. The house has undergone many alterations and additions. It suffered a fire and has been recently restored. There is only one outbuilding of any age surviving. The property lacks sufficient integrity to warrant listing on the National Register.

Main block has 2 bays, entry at S end, porch with square columns over first story on E side (on concrete foundation), simple bracket under eaves faces E, clapboard siding, stone foundation. Shed addition is partly clapboard on stone foundation, and partly shingle.

SIGNIFICANCE:

A farmstead was in existence here, close to the old Hopewell-Princeton Road from at least the early 19th century. The present house is very plain and difficult to date; it may be a late 19th century replacement of an earlier structure or a heavily re-worked original building. ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Vandyke Farmstead, Pennington-Hopewell Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1800-50, remodeled in late 19th century, with smaller 2 story frame section (b), c. 1800-50, attached to SE end, and 2 story frame extension (c), c. 1850-1900 to SE of (b). All sections face S and have clapboard siding, ? stone foundations, and metal roofs. Section (a) has 2 bays, entry at SE end with simple flat pilasters surround, exterior brick chimney at NW gable end, box cornice with gable returns and paired brackets. Section (b) is lower than (a), 3 bays, center entry, interior chimney at NE end (junction with (c)). Section (c) has 2 bays, entry at NW end. Sections (b) and (c) have projecting roof/porch on first story on SW side, main roof has no overhang.

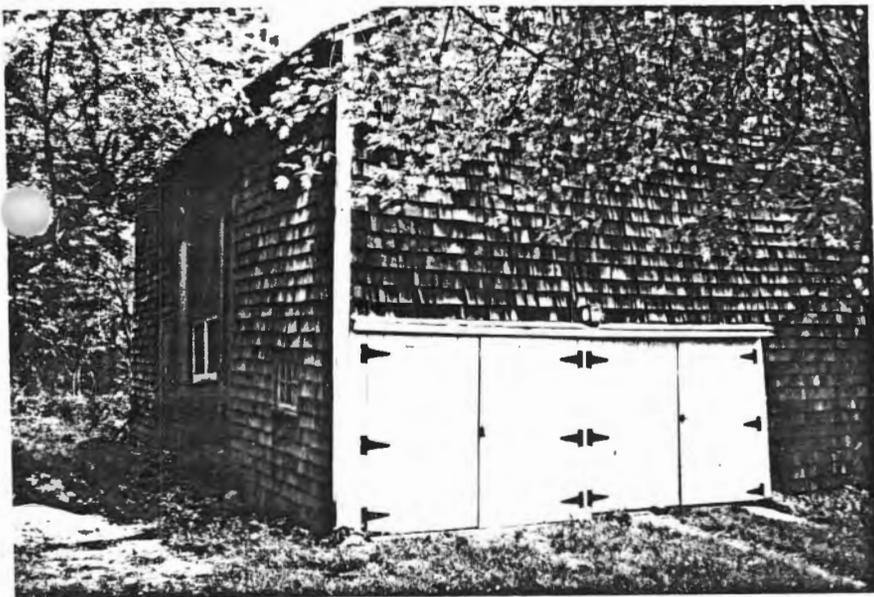

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead probably dates from the early 19th century although more detailed research may show it to be earlier. The house has undergone some modification and only the springhouse and corn crib retain architectural integrity. From this cursory exterior examination the property does not appear to merit National Register listing although further research and examination of the house interior could possibly change this judgement.

House: 2 story stone and frame section (a), c. 1750-1850, with 2 story stone and frame section (b), c. 1750-1850, attached to W end, and 1½ frame section (c), c. 1930-60, set at right angles to (b) forming overall L shaped plan. Sections (a) and (b) face S and have stuccoed stone first story, clapboarded frame upper story, both possibly of 18th century origin, later raised. Section (a) has 3 bays entry to W, brick interior gable end chimney at E end, gable returns with heavy brackets. Section (b) has 2 bays, gable slightly higher than (a), altered openings, obscured by later additions, interior gable end chimney at W end, dormer on S side. Section (c) has shed dormers and porches exterior chimney on S. Post-1960 additions on N side of all three sections.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead may well date from the 18th century although the house has been so altered and added to that a firm date cannot be assigned from an exterior examination. The property contained a still approximately 50 years ago. The house and outbuildings retain insufficient architectural integrity to merit inclusion on the National Register.

Sections (a) and (b) probably constitute the original early 19th century house although the two NW bays of (a) may be a later addition (c. 1850-75), similarly a 1 1/2 story shed addition that occupied the site of (c) (see 1875 view). Section (a) faces SW, 7 bays, off-center entry in third bay from SE, door enframed by partial entablature en ressaunt, 2 story 3 bay porch with 4 box-columns and pilasters, 2 large bow windows in outside, 2 bays at either end of first floor, 7 6/6 windows on second story, 2 interior gable end chimneys (? section (a) may have originated as a regular 5 bay late federal farmhouse

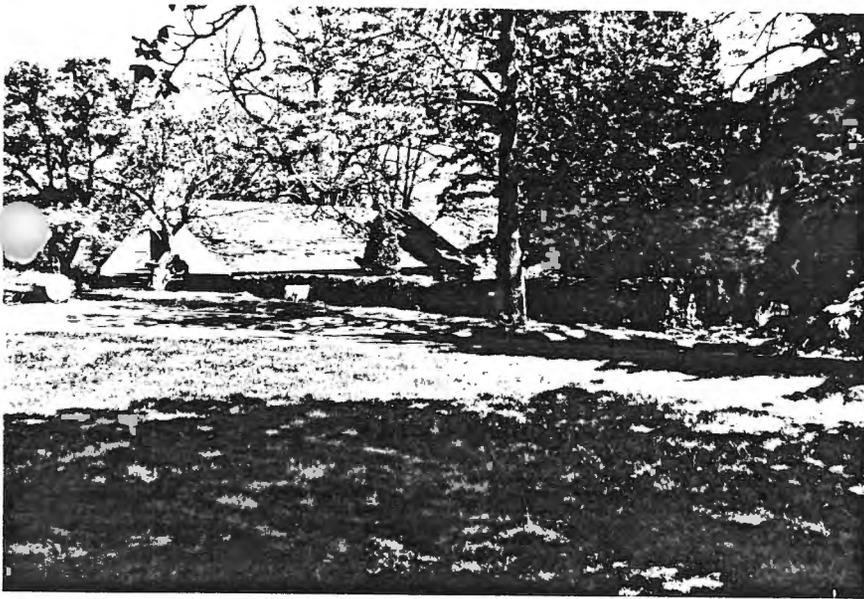

SIGNIFICANCE: This property was originally settled by Roger Parke in the late 17th century and his house was apparently still standing in the mid-19th century. The present house dates from the second quarter of the 19th century and has undergone numerous 19th and 20th century additions and alterations. Neither the house nor the few surviving outbuildings possess much architectural integrity and the property is not eligible for the National Register on historic architectural grounds. However, in view of its early historical associations (and prehistoric potential), the property may merit future consideration as an archeological resource.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Sexton/Drake Farmstead. County Route 518 (Lambertville-Hopewell Road)

House: 2 story stone section (a), c. 1747, with 2 story frame section (b), c. 1800-25, set at right angles at E end forming L-shaped plan. 1 story frame section (c), c. 1940-70, attached to S end of (b); 2 story frame linking section (d), c. 1940-70, attaches 2 story frame section (e), c. 1940-70, to N end of (b). Section (a) faces S, 3 bays, center entry with 6/6 window to W, no opening to E, 3 windows on second floor (E window is 6 pane hinged casement, others 6/6), interior gable end chimney at W end with datestone '1747' (? recent insertion) set into gable peak, stone and frame shed addition to W with fireplace, bake oven and door into (a), N facade altered. Section (b) faces E, typical 3 bay side hall house, entry in N bay with door enframed by pilasters supporting small entablature with pulvinated frieze and dentils, interior gable end chimney at S end (original), exterior gable end chimney at N end (modern addition), clapboard siding, stone foundation, basement, outside entry on E side.

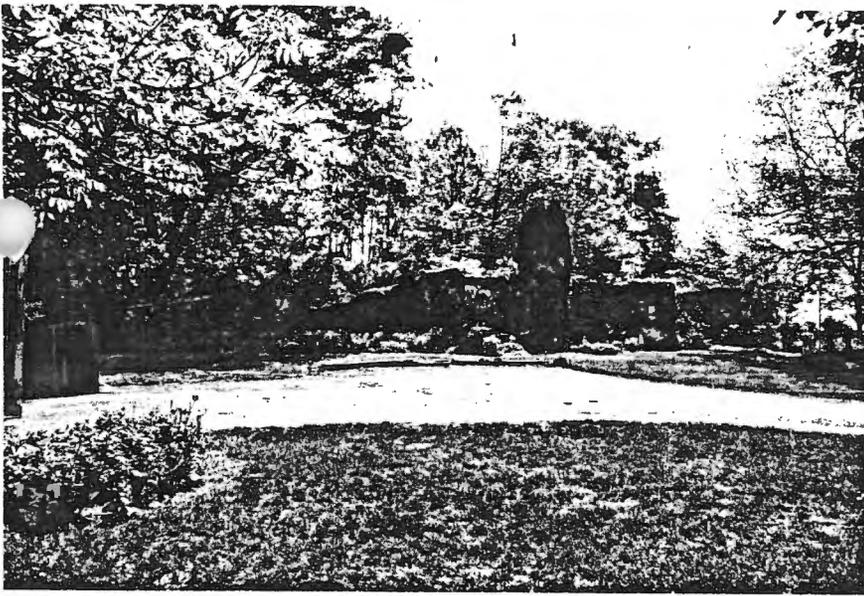

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead evidently dates from the mid-18th century and the house reflects an architectural development spanning more than two centuries. Although the property is of considerable local historical interest because of its house and associated graveyard, it lacks sufficient integrity to merit National Register listing.

House: 2 story stone and frame section (a), c. 1780-1850, with smaller 2 story stone and frame section (b), c. 1780-1850, attached to E, with multiple 20th century additions to N and E of (b). Both sections face S, have stuccoed stone lower stories and shingled upper stories (suggesting they were raised at a later date). Section (a) may have been built in more than 2 stages, S facade lower story is comprised of 2 similar sections each with a central door and flanking window on first story, and 2 flanking windows above. There is a stained glass window centrally located in (a) on S facade, lower story. 2 interior gable end chimneys (W chimney protrudes from exterior), wrap-around porch to S and W with wood columns and modern stone pedestals. Section (b) has 1 bay, no entry on S, bay window on first story, N side obscured by additions, ? originally a kitchen wing.

SIGNIFICANCE:

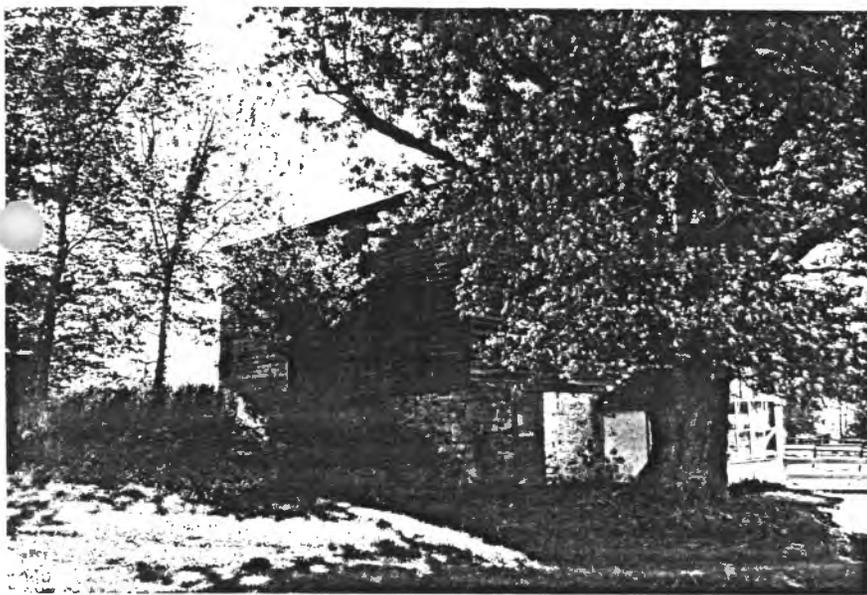

This farmstead was in existence by at least the early 19th century and may have originated in the 18th century. The house is complex, having undergone many additions and alterations, and a firm date cannot be assigned from an exterior examination. The house and outbuildings lack sufficient integrity for National Register listing.

House: 2 story frame structure, c. 1860 ? on site of or incorporating part of an earlier structure, faces SE, square plan with cross gable at NE end, 2 story oriel window to SW on front, 3 bays adjacent to NE with gable above entry with transom and open porch. Gable has 2 round-headed windows and boxed-in cornice in peak, SW and NE facades have 4 bays, paired interior gable end chimneys at SW and NE ends, dressed brownstone foundation, clap-board siding with board and batten in gables, paneled shutters on first floor, louvered shutters on second floor, all windows 2/2, ornate interior includes plaster ceilings and marble fireplaces.

SIGNIFICANCE:

A farmstead has been centered here from at least the first half of the 19th century and possibly earlier. The structures presently standing on the property illustrate well the range of 19th century buildings found on a typical Hopewell area farm. The house is a fine example of a c. 1860 urban influenced farmhouse. The property is possibly eligible for the National Register but requires further study.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Burroughs Farmstead, Marshalls Corner-Woodsville Road
House: 2 story stuccoed stone section (a), c. 1850-75, with smaller 2 story stuccoed stone rear ell (c), same age, set at right angles to NE of (a) forming T-shaped plan. Stucco in both sections inscribed to resemble ashlar masonry: both sections have low gable slate roofs with gable returns and ends, box cornices and decorative finials. Section (a) faces NW, 3 bays with center gable, center entry with recessed opening, panels, sidelights, 4-light transom, etched glass around door, and molding above, 4/4 windows with fake lintels on first and second stories; dormer gable over entry with triple round-headed windows; flat roof porch, colonnettes with segmented arched supports, N and S gable facades have 4/4 window on each floor with ornate triple window in gable; full basement, 2 interior brick chimneys, dividing ridge into thirds. Section (b) has 3 bays, partially enclosed porch across first story on SW, 4/4 windows on SW and NE facades, gabled dormers, paired garret windows in SE gable, interior chimney in center, ? no basement

SIGNIFICANCE:
This exceptionally well-preserved and large farmstead dates from at least the early 19th century although the structures on the property today appear to date from the period 1850-75. Comparison of the extant buildings with the 1875 Everts & Stewart view shows that most of the structures present in 1875 still survive today. The house is a fine example of rural domestic architecture with most of its mid-19th century stylistic elements still intact. It may be constructed with stone from one of the nearby quarries. The outbuildings exhibit clearly the wide range of agricultural activities REFERENCES: on the property and the farm still retains considerable integrity of setting. The origins of this property requires further research.

DESCRIPTION:

ENVIRONMENTAL

The farmstead nucleus occupies the crest of a flat-topped ridge with fine views of the Stony Brook drainage to the N and E. The house faces the road with the outbuildings arranged in an irregular rectilinear pattern behind (to the SE). The surrounding area is mostly made up of cultivated fields. The property is not presently a working farm.

BUILDINGS

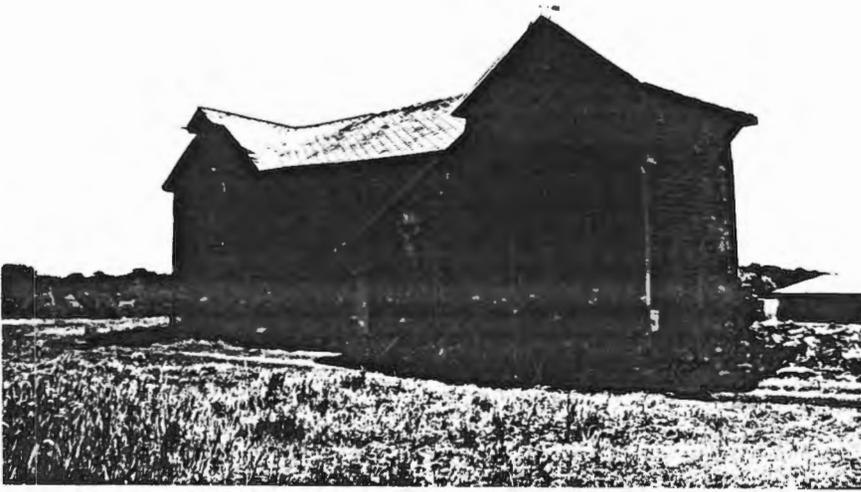

- A. frame storage shed: 1 story, clapboard siding, stone foundation, c. 1875-1925
- B. frame machinery shed: 1 story, vertical board siding, stone foundation, off-center gable, reworked, hinged and sliding doors on SW, c. 1850-75 (see 1875 view).
- C. frame barn (? hog house): 1 story, high stone foundation with ? projecting stalls to SW, vertical board siding, hinged doors on NW and SW, c. 1850-75 (see 1875 view)
- D. frame wagon house: 1½ story, NE, SW and part of SE walls constructed of stone (rest is frame with clapboard siding), sliding door on NW side, gingerbread on eaves, c. 1850-75 (see 1875 view)
- E. double corn crib/wagon house, frame: 1 story, clapboard siding, sliding doors across central bay on SW and NE, hinged crib doors on SW c. 1850-75 (see 1875 view)
- F. barn: collapsed, mostly stone, 2 stories, c. 1850-75 or possibly earlier (see 1875 view)
- G. frame barn: L-shaped plan with 2 story addition to N, 2 story, board and batten siding, main doors on NE and SW sides, SW section open on first story to NW, (see 1875 view)
- H. frame ? chicken coop: 1 story, 20th century

Other outbuildings, including a 1 story frame shed and a 1 story frame ? well house (with cupola), are shown in the 1875 view but are no longer extant.

2 story frame structure, c. 1849-60, with 1½ story shed addition, ? same age, attached to W end. Main section faces S, 2 bays, entry in W bay, window to E, 2 windows above, interior gable end chimney at W end, shingled exterior, stone foundation. Shed addition has entry on S with window above and to W.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This simple house was probably a tenant dwelling. In 1875, it was owned by J.H. Hill who owned a larger farm to the east (1106-23-2) and it may have functioned as a secondary residential unit for his property. It does not appear to have been connected at this time with the Burroughs Farmstead a National Register quality property that lies slightly closer. The building is of minimal architectural interest.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Baldwin/Hunt Farmstead, Marshall's Corner-Woodville Road
House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49, with 2 story frame rear ell (b), c. 1825-75, set at right angles to N side of (a) forming T-shaped plan. 1 story frame addition, 20th century, in NE angle of (a) and (b). Both sections have stone foundations, vinyl shingle siding, and box cornices with decorative moldings below. Section (a) faces S, 5 bays, center entry in wider bay, door enframed by reeded pilasters supporting segmental arch with sunburst pattern and flanked by two 4-light elliptical windows, windows on S all 6/6 (first floor in molded architecture frames, second floor in simple frames with multiple molding caps), exterior brick chimney at W end, interior chimney with exposed base at E end. Section (b) has 2 bays, entry on W side closest to main block, no chimney (? removed).

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead appears to have been established in the first half of the 19th century. There are no indications of any structures pre-dating this period. The house and one surviving historic outbuilding have been extensively modernized and altered; the property lacks sufficient integrity for National Register listing.

2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49, with a 2 story frame addition (b), c. 1840-75 (possibly earlier), set at right angles to E forming an L-shaped plan: Section (c), c. 1875-1900, is a 1½ story frame shed addition to S of intersection of (a) and (b); section (d), c. 1930-50, is a 1 story frame shed addition to S of (a). Section (a) faces N with gable end oriented towards road, 2 bay front facade with entry centered between bays, 3 bays deep, interior gable end chimney at S end, stone foundation, vinyl siding and replacement shutters, 20th century front porch. Section (b) faces N with gable parallel to road, 4 bays, entry with porch in second bay from E, 2 interior gable end chimneys, stone foundation, vinyl siding.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This structure apparently dates from the mid-19th century and for many years served as the store and post office of the small crossroads community of Woodsville. The building has sustained recent fire damage and its architectural character has been altered by the application of vinyl siding and a recent addition and porch. In its original condition this building was possibly individually eligible for the National Register; it is now a contributing element in the proposed Woodsville REFERENCES: Historic District, historically important as a community facility.

Section (b) has a shed roof, interior chimney at E end, clapboard siding. Section (c) has a flat roof, exterior chimney at N end, clapboard siding.

SIGNIFICANCE:

Dating from the mid-19th century when it was occupied by Dr. W.S. Janney, this house is a well-preserved example of pattern book architecture. It provides a strong contrast to the various regional adaptations of vernacular architecture which characterize the area. Although it has later additions, these are compatible with the original form and the house retains its original siding. In 1819 the Ege family purchased the property and with the opening of the Georgetown-Franklin Turnpike in 1825 converted the house into an inn or tavern, retaining ownership until the early 20th century. Section (b) faces E, interior gable end chimney at N end, stone foundation, asbestos siding, porch to E.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This structure apparently served as a post office c. 1849 and as a hotel during the second half of the 19th century. However, its historic architectural character has been somewhat compromised by non-compatible recent additions, asbestos siding, a second front entrance, recent overhanging roof and cornices, and subdivision into apartments. House: 2 story stone section (a), c. 1725-60, with larger 2 story frame section (b), c. 1800-25, attached to E end. Both sections face S. Section (a) has 3 bays, center entry flanked by 6/6 windows (pegged frames), 2 4/4 windows above, heavy "Dutch" style door with pegged frame and strap hinges, large cooking fireplace with separate bake oven and interior gable end chimney at W end, exterior masonry regularly coursed with quoins (recently repainted), datestone in W gable has date "1726" (needs confirmation), 1 room deep, heavy hand hewn joists and summer beam, winding stair adjacent to fireplace, shed porch across S side with heavy timbers (? rebuilt). Section (b) is a 3 bay side-hall house, 2 rooms deep, entry at W end with small gable porch, first story windows 12/12 with paneled shutters, second story 6/6 with louvered shutters, windows have pegged frames with molded architrave frames, 2 interior gable end brick chimneys, E chimney has exposed stone base, N side fenestration altered (picture window) but includes some original features, basement with entry from E end of porch in (a).

SIGNIFICANCE:

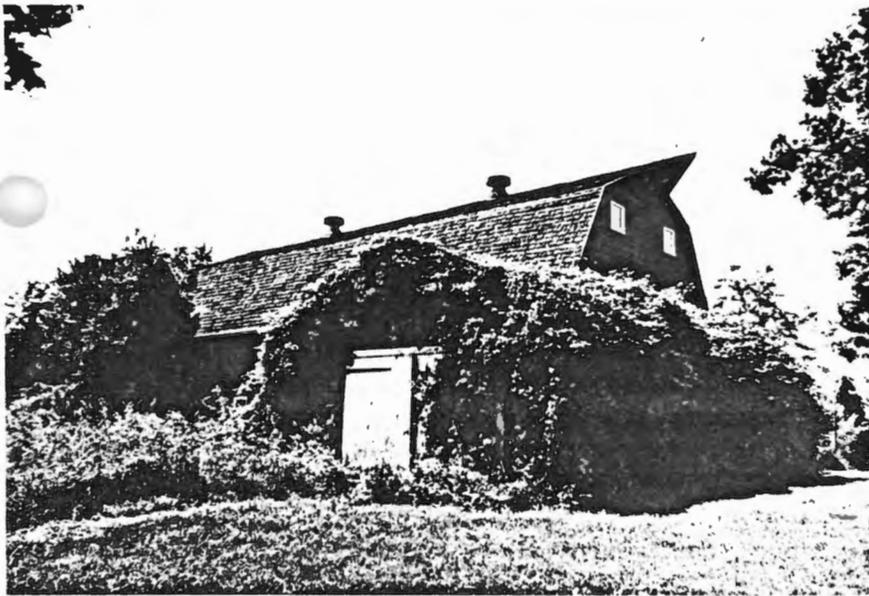

This farmstead probably dates from the early 18th century and the stone portion of the house may have been built during this period. Despite recent renovations (in 1958), the property--and the house in particular--still retains a fine measure of architectural integrity. The house's combination of stone wing and later side-hall structure is common in the area, and this is a good example of the genre. The interior was not examined but it is unlikely that its condition will effect the evaluation of this property as being of National Register quality.

Section (b) faces S, originally 1 story, raised to 2 story, c. 1775-1825, 2 bays, aluminum siding, same gable roof line as (a), interior gable end chimney at W end, S side extended in 20th century to match front facade of (a).

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead and the house presently on the site probably date from the mid-18th century. There are also two virtually unaltered outbuildings which may date from the 18th century. Extensive alteration of the front facade, changes in fenestration, aluminum siding, and the addition of a second story on the western wing have all altered the house's architectural character and preclude its listing on the National Register as an individual eligible property. As a link to the area's 18th century agricultural origins, this farmstead is, however, an important contributing element in the proposed Woodsville Historic District.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Golden Farmstead, Harbourton-Rocktown Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49, (possibly later), with 2 story frame rear ell (b), ? same age, set at right angles to the W of (a). 1 story frame gable addition, 20th century, to W of (b). Sections (a) and (b) on covered stone and brick foundation, asbestos shingle siding. Section (a) faces E, small 3 bay side hall house with entry to N, no porch on step, 2 interior gable end chimneys, windows have molded drip caps. Sections (b) has 3 bays, enclosed porch with 2 entries on S side, interior chimney in center of ridge.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead is similar to the Hixoh/Smith/Golden farmstead across the road to the NE (1106-25-4) and may date from the same period, the second quarter of the 19th century. The house is larger and less altered than its neighbor but is still difficult to date from an exterior examination only. Neither the house nor the outbuildings are of sufficient architectural interest to merit National Register listing.

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49 or post-1875, with 2 story frame rear ell (b), ? same age, set at right angles across rear (W) of (a) forming rectangular plan. Both sections have asbestos shingle siding, some window replacements, stone foundations. Section (a) faces E, 4 bays, off-center entry with door enframed by pilasters supporting pediment, interior gable end chimney at S end. Section (b) has 2 bays, entry on S side at N end.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead was established by at least the first half of the 19th century although the property is curiously excluded from the 1875 map. The present structures may all date from after 1875 although the house could also be earlier. The property resembles in terms of location and building types the two farmsteads to the north. It is not architecturally or historically significant.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Wilson Farmstead, Harbourton-Mount Airy Road

House: 2 story brick section, c. 1810-49, with smaller 2 story brick rear ell (b), same age, set at right angles to S of (a) forming L-shaped plan. Both sections are American bond (7 stretchers to 1 header), partially stuccoed, have stone foundations, all windows 6/6 with wood lintels and sills, box cornice. Section (a) faces N, 5 bays, center entry with 3-light transom, 2 interior gable end chimneys, basement. Section (b) faces E, 3 bays, center entry, second story windows touch fascia, interior gable end chimney at S end, 1 story porches to E and W, ? no basement (set lower than (a)), kitchen wing.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead dates from at least the early 19th century. Although few outbuildings survive and those that do are deteriorated, the house is a fine, substantial and well-preserved example of a rural federal-influenced farmhouse. Its exterior appearance has suffered minimal loss of integrity and if the interior is of similar quality, it would very likely qualify for National Register listing.

House: 2 story brick section (a), c. 1875-1900, (possibly incorporating earlier elements), attached to smaller 2 story brick section (b), c. 1803, forming T-shaped plan. 1½ story, 3 bay brick addition and brick garage, 20th century, attached to W (rear) of (b). All sections have painted brick. Section (a) faces E, 5 bays, center entry with oval arch opening, sidelights and fanlight transom enframed by simple colonnettes, 6/6 windows with wood sills and lintels, 2 story portico across front supported by 4 attenuated columns, flat porch roof with ornamental railing, gable facades are 3 bays wide, 1 story glazed porch to S similar in style to E portico, 1 story open porch to N, 2 pairs of interior gable end chimneys, slate roof, molded fascia, windows have paneled shutters on first floor, louvered shutters on second floor. Section (b) obscured by enclosed porch to S and 1 story frame addition to N, ? 2 bays, interior gable end chimney at W end (fireplace includes bake oven opening), basement, kitchen wing, extensively altered.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead was probably established in the first decade of the 19th century and a portion of the existing house may date from this period. The main section of the house dates from later in the century and reflects the transition of this property from a typical rural farm to a wealthy horse farm/country estate. The property is of some architectural interest and could conceivably be of National Register quality if the interior proves to be exceptionally well-preserved. On the basis of its exterior appearance alone, the house does not merit National Register listing

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead dates from the early 18th century and is possibly eligible for the National Register. The house has undergone many changes which reflect the typical evolution of a prosperous Hopewell area farm followed by the transition to wealthy country home. No large outbuildings survive but there is an interesting array of smaller structures. The rural setting of this property is still largely intact even though this is no longer a working farm. A final evaluation of Register eligibility should await careful inspection of the house interior and an assessment of archaeological potential.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Mershon Farmstead, Country Route 518 (Lambertville-Hopewell Road)

House: 2 story frame structure, c. 1860-75, with later additions (may also include earlier section), possibly built in 2 or 3 stages, stone foundation, vinyl shingle siding, faces NW. NE portion has 3 bays, center entry with pedimented hood flanked by 2 windows, 2 windows above (all 2/2 replacements) interior? gable end chimney at SW end (now inside building), modern exterior chimney on SE side, NE facade has change in foundation suggesting that structure might have been one room deep and later extended to SE to form 2 rooms, altered foundation. SW portion has 1 bay, 2 door openings on SW gable end with 1 story porch (turned posts and brackets).

SIGNIFICANCE:

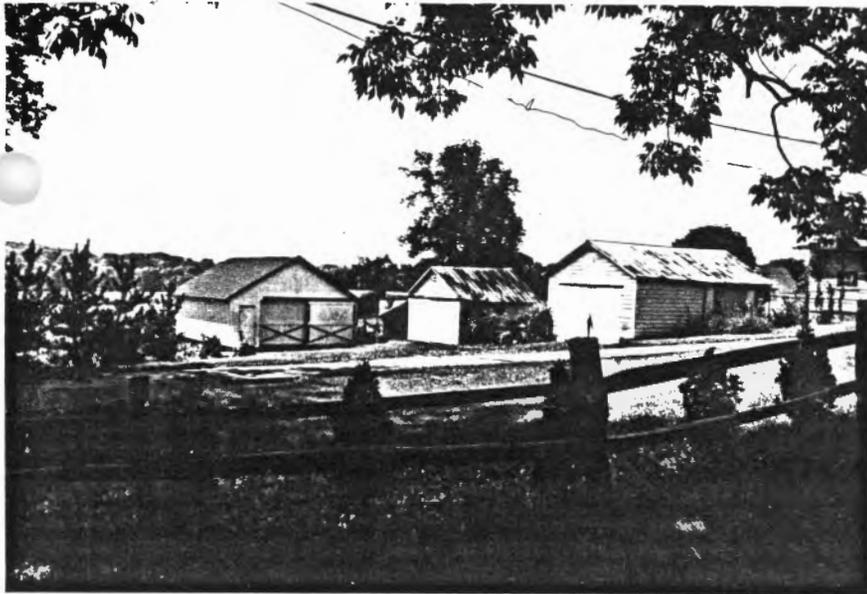

This small roadside farmstead does not appear on historic maps until 1875. It may occupy an earlier site in view of the barn containing a datestone of 1825 and could have been a tenant property associated with the farm to the south (1106-29-5). The property has little architectural merit.

House: 2 story frame section (a), 19th century (possibly with earlier elements), with adjoining 2 story frame sections (b) and (c), c. 1875-1925, to W and E. Sequence of development unclear. All sections face S (originally N), interior gable end chimneys at W end of each section, clapboard siding, stone foundation, matching windows, entire exterior re-finished in one style (? c. 1925). Section (a) has 3 bays on S side, only entry is on N side of E end. Section (b) has 3 bays on S side, cut-away inset porch with entry at E end, entry on N side. Section (c) has 2 bays on S side, cut-away inset porch across both bays, entry on N side.

SIGNIFICANCE:

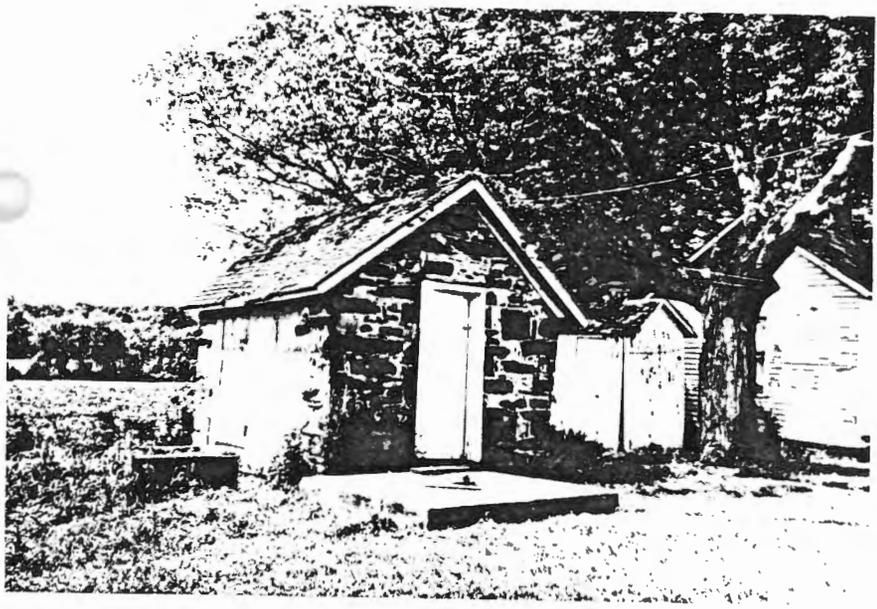

This farmstead dates from at least the early 19th century and possibly earlier. The house has been extensively altered and is now largely devoid of integrity. Despite an interesting array of stone and frame outbuildings, this property is not of National Register quality.

House: 2 story frame structure comprised of 2 main sections of same age, c. 1850-75. Front portion faces W, 5 bays, center entry with transom, double-paneled doors, cross gable over entry with pedimented window, ornate bracketed porch with railing across 3 center bays, 2 interior gable end chimneys. Rear portion has 2 bays, used to have inset porch (now filled), entries to E and N.

SIGNIFICANCE:

A farmstead was established on this property by 1849. The present house is probably not the original residence but may include parts of an earlier structure. The main surviving historic outbuilding has lost most of its architectural integrity. Despite the good condition of the house, this property is not of National Register quality.

Sections (a) and (b) both have aluminum siding, ? stone foundations. Section (a) faces E, 5 bays, center entry enframed by fluted pilasters supporting simple entablature, all other exterior ornaments removed, slanted garret windows to N and S, 2 interior gable end chimneys. Section (b) has 2 bays, interior gable end chimney at W end. Segmental vaulted cistern has been converted into wine cellar.

SIGNIFICANCE:

The house, probably of mid-19th century date, is all that survives of this farmstead which was established by 1849. The property functioned as a tomato farm in the early 20th century. The house has been extensively altered and added to. It may contain earlier elements but is not architecturally significant.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Stout/Hall Farmstead, Harbourton-Woodsville Road

House: 2 story stone section (a), c. 1725-75, with a large 2 story stone section (b), c. 1750-1820, attached to NE end. 2 story frame addition, 20th century, to NW of (a). Sections (a) and (b) both face SE. Section (a) has 3 bays, center entry flanked by 2 windows, one room deep, interior gable end chimney at SW end, no basement, random laid fieldstone. Section (b) is a 3 bay side hall house, 2 rooms deep with back-to-back corner fireplaces and interior gable end chimney at NE end, entry on SE side is at SW end, basement, 4' high water table with 2 basement windows (with segmental arches) to NE, masonry laid in fairly regular courses, irregular fenestration on N side, 6/6 windows, small box cornice.

SIGNIFICANCE:

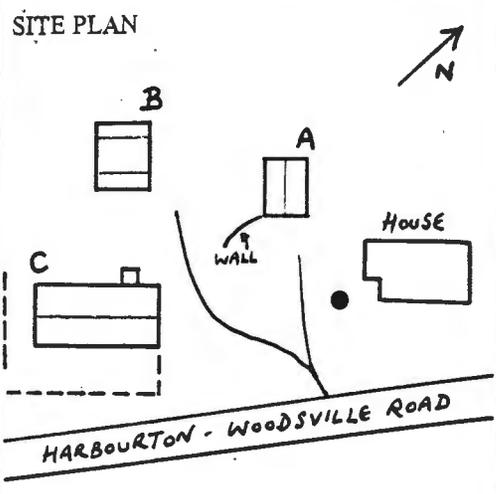

This farmstead, based on the buildings on the site, was in existence by the mid-18th century. The house is a good example of a two-section stone residence and may date entirely to the 18th century. Its exterior condition is good and, depending on the integrity of the interior, this structure is probably of National Register caliber. The outbuildings supply supplementary significance.

Two modern houses occupy this site. The one to the N dates from c. 1940 and is on the site of an earlier structure destroyed by a gas explosion c. 1930. The house to the S was also built c. 1930 as the principal residence by the present owner.

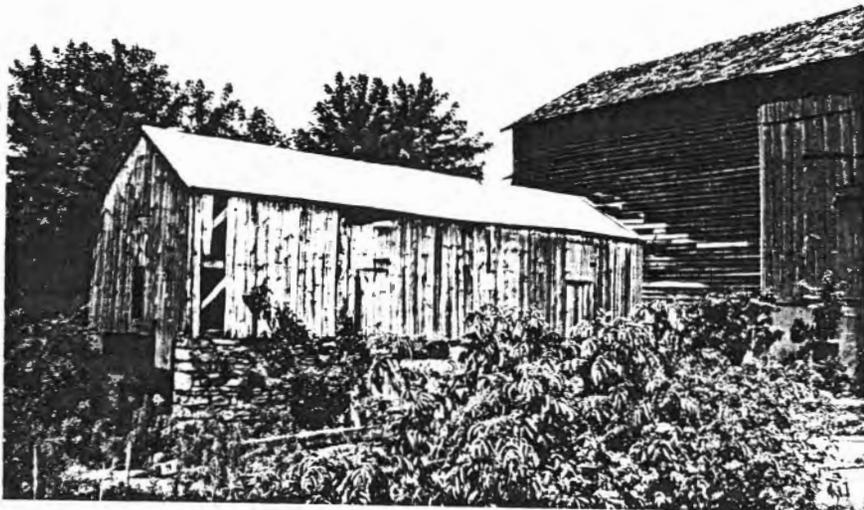

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead dates from at least the early 19th century and perhaps earlier. Despite an interesting barn complex arranged around a courtyard and subsidiary outbuildings, the loss of the house precludes serious consideration of this property as being eligible for the National Register.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Field/Phillips/Baldwin Farmstead, Harbourton-Woodsville Road

House: 2 story stone section (a), ? c. 1750-80 shell (interior reworked in mid-19th century), with 1 story stone wing (b), ? 18th century (reworked in 19th century), attached to W. 1 and 2 story frame addition to NW (rear) 20th century. Sections (a) and (b) face SE, random laid fieldstone with rough quoins. Section (a) has 5 bays, 2 entries (one center, one to SW), 6/6 windows, with shouldered sills and headers, plank shutters, 2 interior gable end chimneys, cornice with dentils, wood shingle roof, basement, sawn framing windows and fedord trim in interior. Section (b) has 2 bays, entry to SW, large stone fireplace with bake oven in SW end.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead is almost certainly of 18th century origin. The exterior form of the house is 18th century but the interior appears to have been entirely reworked in the mid-19th century. The property was known for its distillery in the 19th century, the ruins of which still survive and may prove to be of archeological interest. The property does not retain sufficient architectural integrity to merit National Register listing.

2 story frame section (a), c. 1860-75, with 2 story frame section (b), c. 1875-1900, attached to S. Section (a) faces E, 3 bays with center entry and recent porch, gable roof, asbestos siding, replacement shutters and windows, chimneys removed, 1½ story frame lean-to addition, c. 1950, to rear. Section (b) faces S, 2 bays, flat roof, asbestos siding, 1 story frame shed roof addition, c. 1950, to rear.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This house dates from the third quarter of the 19th century when it was occupied by a Mrs. Snook. Its architectural character has been diminished by non-compatible additions visible from the front, changes in fenestration, and asbestos siding. The property is not individually eligible. It does not contribute substantially (but does not detract from) the proposed Woodsville Historic District.

Section (a) faces E, 4 bays with gable parallel to road, entry off-set to S, clapboard siding, overhanging gable roof with returning eaves, full width Victorian porch with turned posts added to front, new interior gable end chimney at S end. Section (b) faces E, no entry, same width as (a), flat roof.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This house and associated barn date from the third quarter of the 19th century when it was occupied by P.J. Snook. Despite two successive additions to the rear, the house retains much of its original appearance on the front facade, although the Victorian porch has altered its character somewhat. Although ineligible individually, this property is a contributing element in the proposed Woodsville Historic District.

The house on this property is probably of mid-20th century date and it bears no resemblance to the structure in the Everts & Stewart view of 1875. The building may, however, re-use an earlier foundation.

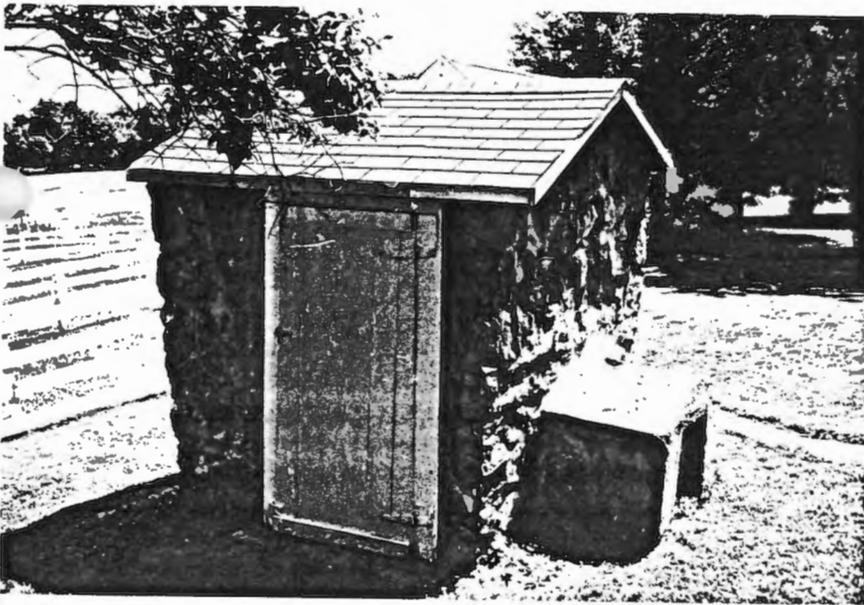

SIGNIFICANCE:

A view of this farmstead in 1875 shows what appears to be a late 18th or early 19th century farmhouse and a series of outbuildings lining the road. None of these survive today. The one possible historic outbuilding on the site is not architecturally significant and 20th century use of the site may have damaged any archeological resources the property may have.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Hunt Farmstead (Twin Hunt Farm), Harbourton-Woodsville Road
House: 2 story stone section (a), 1817, with smaller 2 story stone section (b), probably same age, attached to W, and 2 story frame section (c), c. 1850-1900, attached to E. All sections face N and have paneled and louvered shutters. Sections (a) and (b) have similar masonry (irregular coursing, rough quoins), 6/6 and 9/6 windows, window moldings and boxed cornices. Section (a) is a 3 bay side hall house, 2 rooms deep with entry at W end on N side, door with recessed panels and 4 light transom, 2 interior gable and chimneys, E gable has detestone with 'JGH 1817', full basement (3 small windows on S side), federal-style interior (mantels, cupboards). Section (b) has 2 bays, 1 room deep, entry on N side to E, door with recessed panels and 3 light transom, interior gable end chimney at W end, W gable and rebuilt, enclosed porch to S and N, kitchen wing. Section (c) has 1 bay, no entry, modern porch to E.

SIGNIFICANCE: This farmstead apparently dates from the second decade of the 19th century (possibly earlier) and is historically associated with the prominent Hunt family and the neighboring Smith/Hunt/Hill Farmstead (1106-31-6(A)). The house is a fine example of federal rural domestic architecture and, despite additions and alterations, is probably eligible for the National Register (careful interior examination recommended). The property is certainly eligible as a rural district component. There is an old community graveyard to the north in which many local residents

SIGNIFICANCE:

This property has historically been associated with the Moore's Mills complex (1106-37-6(C)), and for much of its existence was a millwright's house. The house has been much altered but probably dates from c. 1790 when the first documented references to its presence occur (requires interior examination for confirmation). ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Moore Farmstead, Pennington-Hopewell Road
House: 2 story brick section (a), c. 1820, with 2 story, brick section (b) ? same age, attached to E end. Both sections face S today (?originally N towards road and mills), have a brick water table, 6/6 windows, doors with stone sills, all other lintels and sills in wood, corbeled cornice with brick dentil blocks. Section (a) has 4 bays, entries in second bay from W and between third and fourth bays from W, former has arched opening with fanlight transom, 3 bay porch over eastern 3 bays with small block columns supporting heavily molded cornice/roof with brackets, 1/2 circle garret windows in W gable, arched center entry on N side, porch on N side similar to S, 12/12 bay window added on N side at E end, no brick dentil blocks in cornice on N side, wide interior gable end chimney at W end (stuccoed), basement, ? stone foundation. Section (b) has 2 bays, entry to W lower than those in (a), irregular fenestration on N side, door at E end on N side, enclosed porch across E end, wide interior gable and chimney at W end, ? kitchen wing. Many features in present structure visible in 1875 views (different porches and E end fenestration).

SIGNIFICANCE: This farmstead was established c. 1820 by Joseph Moore, then owner of the Moore's Mills complex which originated c. 1720. The farm prospered through into the 20th century benefiting from the proximity of the railroad and the tenure of Ephraim S. Wells who turned the property into a successful stock farm (Wells made his fortune developing rat and insect poisons). Despite the subsequent conversion of the property into a golf course, the house (now used as offices for the golf club) still retain a remarkable degree of exterior integrity (cf. 1875 view). If examination of the interior shows it to have similar integrity inside, this building would be significant.

qualify for inclusion in the National Register as a well-preserved example of a wealthy, early 19th century brick farmhouse associated with a thriving mill complex. Should the mill site prove to be a significant archaeological resource, this house should be considered an important supplementary resource with a strong historical connection.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Hill House, Pennington-Hopewell Road, Marshalls Corner

2 story frame structure, c. 1849-60, faces N, gable end perpendicular to road, off-center entry flanked by 3 window bay to E and stained glass stairwell window to W, T-plan, main N-S gable with smaller intersecting E-W gables toward rear (? defining outline of earlier structure), chimney on ridge of N-S gable toward rear, stone foundation, clapboard and shingle siding, small shed roof porches to N and W.

SIGNIFICANCE:

Although part of this house dates to the mid-19th century, it has apparently been moved back from its original foundation and a c. 1920-30 vernacular Queen Anne/Stick Style addition has been placed on the front. These changes were made by Welling Titus, a well-known local builder and house mover, who has left his mark on a number of buildings in the Marshalls Corner vicinity. The house retains little of its original character and is therefore of minimal architectural interest. It is not eligible as an individual property.

Section (a) faces N, 2 bays, entry off-set to W with shed roof porch, modern exterior block chimney at W end, interior gable end chimney at E end covered by roofing, stuccoed stone foundation, clapboard siding, gable roof, 1 room deep. Section (b) has a 1 story shed roof addition to N (continuing line of porch in front of (a)) and a modern 1 story frame gable addition to S.

SIGNIFICANCE:

Although this structure dates to the mid-19th century when it is shown as a saddle shop, it is of minimal architectural interest. There is no evidence of the building's former commercial usage (which may have occurred in the shed addition) and its character has been altered by changes in fenestration and additions.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Burd Farmstead, Pennington-Hopewell Road

House: 2 story frame section (a) c. 1825-49, with larger 2 story frame section (b), c. 1920, set at right angles to the NW (in front) of (a). Section (a) is largely obscured by (b) but probably originally faced NW, shingle siding, interior gable and stone chimney at SW end, pegged frame with brick infill, handmade nails, bay window added at NE, gables altered to match (b), 1 story closed-in porch to SE (rear). Section (b) has 2 bays, front facade is in NW gable end, door to SW, 2 single windows to NE, stained glass stairhall window to SW, 2 paired windows on second story, triple window in gable, ogee-shaped boxed-in cornice, clapboard siding on lower stories, shingle siding in gable, large porch across front and to SW (stone foundation and pedestals supporting box columns).

SIGNIFICANCE: A farmstead was in existence on this property by at least 1849. The rear portion of the house may be the original farmhouse but is now largely obscured by a c. 1920 addition erected by Welling Titus, a well-known local builder and house-mover. The early 20th century elements in the house closely resemble those in other buildings worked on by Titus (e.g. 1106-37-12). Although of local architectural interest, this hybrid structure is not considered eligible as an individual structure. Future consideration could be given, however, to a "group" nomination of structures worked on by Welling Titus.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Titus/Mill Farmstead, Pennington-Hopewell Road

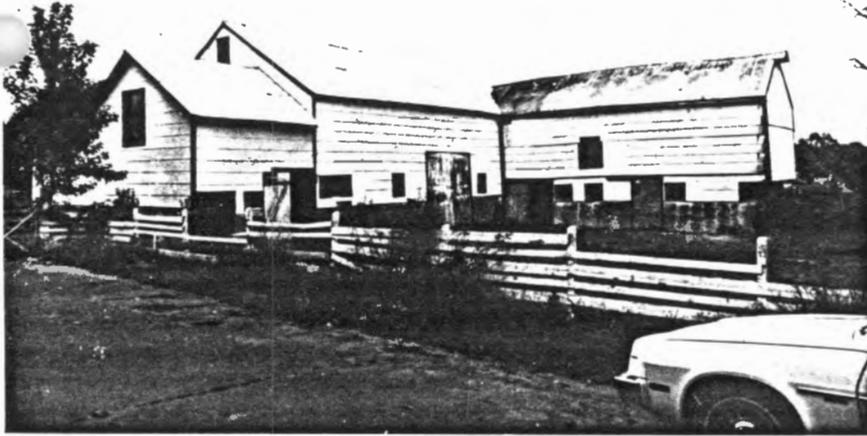

House: 2 story frame structure with 3 major sections (a-c). All have stone foundations, clapboard siding. Myriad additions and alterations make the building almost impossible to interpret and date from an exterior examination. The central section (b) may be the oldest? c. 1800-50, with (c) to the E, an early addition, ? c. 1800-75. Section (a) probably dates from c. 1900-25. Jerkinhead roof over entire structure is the result of an early 20th century remodeling during which 3 gabled dormers were added.

SIGNIFICANCE:
This farmstead dates from at least the first half of the 19th century. The surviving buildings have been extensively altered and lack sufficient architectural integrity to merit inclusion on the National Register.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Titus Farmstead, Titus Mill Road

House: 2 story frame structure, c. 1760-90, faces S, 4 bays, off-center entry in second bay from E, small porch over door, 9/6 windows on first floor, 6/6 on second, paneled shutters throughout, paired internal gable end brick chimneys at W end, single chimney at E end, 3 wide bays on N side, modern picture window to E on first floor, 1 story frame gable addition on E side.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead dates from at least the late 18th century. In Titus family ownership for most of its existence until very recently, the property is still farmed and is a good example of a lowland area farmstead. Aside from its long association with the Titus family (one of Hopewell's most prominent families) and its integrity of setting, the farmhouse from an exterior examination appears well-preserved and architecturally notable. If its historic interior is still largely intact, this house and the associated farmstead are worthy of National Register listing.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Drake Farmstead, Titus Mill Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49, with smaller 2 story frame section (b), ? same age, attached to E and 2 story frame section (c), ? 1850-1900, attached to E of (b). All sections face S, stone foundations, clapboard siding. Section (a) has 5 bays, center entry with sidelights, transom, and Greek Revival porch, 2 window gable dormer above, first and second story windows have shouldered architraves and simple triangular pediments, 2 story enclosed porch with round columns on W side (modern), paired interior gable end chimney at E end, single chimney at W end, overhanging box cornice on N and S. Section (b) has 3 bays, center entry on N side, interior gable end chimney at E end, ? kitchen wing. Section (c) has 2 bays, 1 room deep, entries on N and E sides. Modern porch across S side of (b) and (c).

SIGNIFICANCE:

A farmstead was established here by at least 1849 and was in Drake family ownership for most of the late 19th century. The house is fairly well-preserved but the property has little integrity of setting and the outbuildings have been added to and altered.

Blackwell/Stout/Voorhees Farmstead, Wargo Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49, with smaller 2 story frame section (b), same age, set at right angles to E of (a) forming T-shaped plan. Both sections have stuccoed stone foundations and clapboard siding (except vinyl siding on N side of (a)). Section (a) faces W, 5 bays, center entry framed by fluted pilasters and simple entablature, windows have drip caps similar to door, paired brackets supporting eaves, interior gable end chimney at S end. Section (b) has 3 bays, slightly lower than (a), no chimney, porch and shed addition on S side.

SIGNIFICANCE:

A farmstead was in existence here by 1849. The house and some of the out-buildings may date to the first half of the 19th-century. The property is not of outstanding architectural or historical merit.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION: Drake/Golden Farmstead, Pennington-Rocky Hill Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1825-49, with 1½ story frame section (b), 20th century, attached to NE and small 1 story frame addition (c), 20th century, attached to SW. All sections face SE. Section (a) has 5 bays wide central bay with entry, transom with spider web mullions, segmental hood porch, 2/2 windows with ornamental drip moldings and louvered shutters, box cornice without overhang, interior gable end chimney at S end, exterior gable end chimney at N end (off-center), stone foundation, 1 story shed addition to NW. Section (b) has 2 bays, entry to NW, veranda across first story on SE, exterior gable end chimney at NE end.

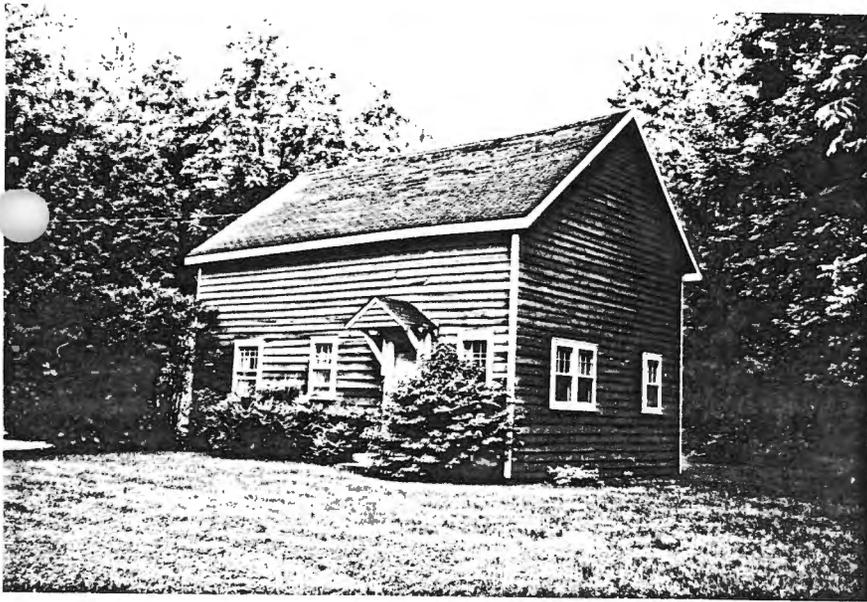

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead probably dates from the second quarter of the 19th century. The house has been extensively altered and added to, and lacks architectural integrity. The integrity of the surrounding rural setting has been compromised by recent suburban developments.

Centerville Schoolhouse Pennington-Rocky Hill Road

House: 1 story frame structure (a), c. 1863, with 1 story frame shed addition (b), ? 1880-1920, attached to N. Modern breezeway and garage attached to N of (b). Section (a) has 3 windows (later replacements) on both E and W sides, entry at S end on E side (S end possibly added on, joint in siding on W side), 2 windows on S side similar to E and W, exterior brick chimney at N end. Section (b) has 1 window to E and W.

SIGNIFICANCE:

The Centerville Schoolhouse was built soon after 1863 on land purchased from Peter V. Drake. It became schoolhouse No. 8 in the local school district. The original structure has been converted into a residence resulting in numerous alterations that have destroyed most of the building's historic architectural integrity.

ADDRESS/DESCRIPTION:

Blackwell Farmstead, Pennington-Rocky Hill Road

House: 2 story frame section (a), c. 1800-30, with smaller, 2 story frame section (b), same age, attached to S. Both sections face E, stone foundations, acrylic shingle siding, box cornices with simple fascias and dentil blocks. Section (a) is a 3 bay side hall house, 2 rooms deep, entry to S with exposed stone base at N end, modern enclosed porch on W side. Section (b) has 2 bays, originally 2 rooms deep (now one), slightly lower than (a), no entry, exterior gable end chimney at S end, modern enclosed porch to S.

SIGNIFICANCE:

This farmstead probably dates from the early 19th century although it is possible that portions of an earlier structure are included in the existing house. The house has been heavily altered, however, and is not architecturally significant. The surrounding area has also been changed radically as a result of suburban development.
